Spring brings tornado threat

by KAREN BLECHA

The nice weather we're having may warm your heart, but remember with the good always comes a little bad. And the bad is tornados.

Warm weather in March increases the chances for tornados and damaging winds, say weather experts. The deadliest tornado month of all — April — is just ahead and the week of April 15-21 is the heaviest period of tornado activity in Illinois.

"The tornado season in Illinois begins in March and lasts through June," said Donald Wernley, forecaster for the National Weather Service. "We're more prone to tornados now because of the unseasonably warm weather. Whenever you get strong interaction between cold and warm, moist air there is the threat of severe weather."

While the last major tornado to hit the Northwest suburbs struck in 1972, the storms came too close for comfort just two weeks ago. Tornados and high winds caused one death and thousands of dollars in damage as they wreaked havoc along a path through Franklin Park, Schiller Park, Park Ridge, Niles, Morton Grove and Skokie.

THE BELIEF that living near Lake Michigan protects the Chicago area from tornados, is only a myth.

"Whether you get hit or not has nothing to do with being near the lake," said Wernley. "Tall buildings in a city might diminish a tornado by breaking up the wind system, but that is only a theory. Everyone in Topeka, Kan. thought a large mound outside the town would always protect them from the storms, but several years ago a tornado took the town apart."

Sixty-five per cent of the tornados that strike Illinois occur during the four spring months, said Stanley Changnon Jr., head of the Atmospheric Sciences Section of the Illinois Water Survey at the University of Illinois.

Survey records show an average of 10 tornados will hit Illinois each year, with 20 per cent occuring in April, he said.

ILLINOIS IS ranked eighth nationally in the number of tornados, but ranks first in tornado deaths and second in tornado damage since 1916, when the first detailed records were started, Changnon said. The greatest frequency of tornados in the state occurs in a three-county corridor running northeast between St. Louis and Chicago, although twisters have hit every county in Illinois.

Changnon said survey records indicate 65 per cent of the storms occur between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. and 80 per cent of them move towards the northeast at speeds between 4 and 67 miles an hour. The average path of a tornado is just under 14 miles, but some have extended more than 100 miles.

Most tornados, Changnon said, are connected to the southwest corner of a thunderstorm cloud, which often is moving towards the northeast. The thunderstorm may have passed over a site or moved to the north before the twister strikes.

A TORNADO is a storm within a storm, created by swirling winds. As the winds rotate, a hollow cavity forms in the center, where centifugal forces create a partial vacuum. As condensation collects around the rotating winds, a pale funnel becomes visible, stretching from the sky to Police work on rebuttal to force study

by JOE SWICKARD

Members of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. are preparing a rebuttal report to a village-prepared development study of the force.

Ten policemen, ranging in rank from patrolman to lieutenant, are preparing the response to the village report, which recommends restructuring the department along "team policing" lines.

Team policing replaces specialized and separate units, such as traffic, investigation and patrol, with "teams" of officers under the unified supervision of a shift commander. In theory, the team would have men with training to handle situations as they arise without having to call upon specialists from another section or shift.

The policemen's response, still incomplete, takes the position that "team policing" is an inefficient and overly expensive method of providing police protection.

SGT. RODNEY KATH, leader of the group preparing the report, said communities that have gone to the team policing method have found it expensive, and in some cases abandoned it after a trial period.

"The main thing to keep in mind is that you should be prepared to double your budget with the teams," Kath said.

Kath said the department report came about because policemen who took part in the village long-range development study said the final report did not adequately reflect what happend in the meetings and discussions.

The village report was released in February after former police Capt. Jack Aldrich sent a letter to the village board through former Trustee Alice Harms. Aldrich said the department was suffering from lack of direction and poor morale. In his letter, he said he wanted the village study and its recommendations made public and questioned why publication was delayed.

ALDRICH'S allegations erupted into a controversy about the administration of Police Chief L. W. Calderwood. Following a special hearing, during which Harms and Aldrich testified, Calderwood and his policies recieved a unanimous voteof confidence from the village trustees.

Kath said the department's report is not meant to reopen the controversy, nor discredit anyone's findings in the original report.

The team policing concept, as outlined in the village report, would:

- Eliminate the second police captain in favor of an assistant chief with responsibilities of budgeting and planning;
- Make lieutenants in command of each shift with consolidation of specialized units, such as traffic, patrol and investigation, under his command;
- Organize the unified commands in terms of shifts, rather than duty or

U.S. seeks better relations with Viets, asks MIA data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has asked Vietnam to join in exploratory talks that may lead to improved relations between the two countries, the White House and State Dept. said Friday.

"We are prepared to discuss with the North Vietnamese all issues concerning Vietnam, including the accounting of our missing in action," said State Dept. spokesman Robert Funseth.

In San Francisco, Deputy White House press secretary John Carlson said, "We would be willing to have discussions which would look toward normalization of relations."

THE CIA, IN THE most authoritative and comprehensive summary of the MIA situation, has concluded that no American prisoners are alive in Southeast Asia, but said some governments, North Vietnam especially, are holding back significant amounts of information about the missing.

Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., chairman of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, said, "The announcement of the proposed exploratory talks is an important step forward in gaining an accounting of Americans missing in action."

Along with members of his panel, Montgomery went to Paris in December to talk with North Vietnamese Ambassador Vo Van Sung. They spoke also to Premier Pham Van Dong in Hanoi.

In conversations with American members of Congress and in public statements, the Hanoi government has insisted the United States has an obligation to supply post war reconstruction aid.

The North Vietnamese claim that the United States committed itself to supply a total of $7 billion to Southeast Asia, but U.S. officials say any aid agreement became null and void because of massive violations of the 1973 cease-fire.

Mall weather warnings sought

When the weather service issues tornado warnings, State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, worries about people at shopping malls.

"When you're indoors at Randhurst or Woodfield you don't know what's going on outside. The sun could be shining when you walk in and you can be there for hours not knowing if the weather has changed," she said.

To solve the problem, Mrs. Chapman has proposed a bill in the state legislature that would require all enclosed malls of at least 200 square feet in area to broadcast severe weather warnings over loudspeaker systems. She said each shopping mall woulb be required to purchase a warning device, at a cost under $50, that would provide reports issued by the National Weather Service.

"THAT WAY THEY could warn their customers they are in danger and give them time to make plans," she said.

Mrs. Chapman said she introduced the bill last spring. It was passed in the Illinois House of Representatives but tabled by the Illinois Senate Executive Committee. She said she plans to reintroduce the bill April 5.

Mrs. Chapman said the Illinois Civil Defense Agency supports the bill and the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. is not opposed to it.

She said the bill would require a $33,000 appropriation for the state Civil Defense agency. The agency would draw up regulations for shopping centers and enforce provisions of the bill.

Mrs. Chapman said while some merchants believe a warning would panic shoppers, she feels the bill has the potential to save lives and do it inexpensively.

"I'M ALSO CONCERNED about theaters and auditoriums," she said. "When tornado warnings were issued in Champaign March 20, they should have stopped the Illinois High School Assn. basketball tournament and warned the audience to find safety. But they didn't. The game went on."

The tornado in Champaign touched down in several places and caused damage, but missed the University of Illinois Assembly hall where the tournament was being played.

"This bill is just one step," Mrs. Chapman said. She said she would like to see state laws requirng warning ystems at auditoriums and theaters and laws that make it mandatory for shopping malls and other large buildings to have tornado drills.

Suburban digest

Illinois battered by severe storms

Tornados, thunderstorms and hail swept across northern and western Illinois Friday night, causing extensive damage in some communities, particularly in the Quincy area. Severe weather warnings were in effect in the Northwest suburban area late Friday night, but the brunt of the storms hit earlier in Downstate regions. At least one tornado hit Quincy, destroying one house trailer, trees, barns and machine sheds, although no injuries were reported. Another tornado was sighted near Macomb, while hail and heavy rains pelted parts of McDonough County. Tornados also struck in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri, killing at least four and injuring more than three dozen others.

Court ballot tally ordered

Some 80,000 untallied ballots will be counted in the race between Democrats James Dooley and Judge Joseph Power for the Illinois Supreme Court, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Harry Comerford ruled Friday. However, the judge said he will rule later whether the ballots will become part of the official vote once they are counted. Dooley had attempted to block counting of the judicial ballots in 429 Chicago precincts because they were taken home untallied by election judges after the March 16 primary. With about 88 per cent of the ballots tallied, Dooley, an independent Democrat, is leading machine-backed Power by 14,000 votes. The two are competing for the Democratic Supreme Court nomination in the 1st judicial district.

Dist. 21 to cut 60 teachers

A tax referendum could be coupled with the decision to cut 60 nontenured teachers in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to offset an anticipated $1 million budget deficit. Sixty of the district's 167 nontenured teachers will be dismissed for the 1976-77 school year to save about $500,000 in salaries. Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district "will try to hire all of the teachers back" if enough vacancies occur from teacher retirements. The district currently has 420 teachers. Gill also said Friday he will ask the school board to appoint a citizens committee to study holding a tax referendum to raise additional revenues.

Tyrell predicts victory in vote for GOP leaders

by STEVE BROWN

Cook County Comr. Harold Tyrell predicted Friday he will be able to gain control of the Cook County Republican Party from Louis Kasper Monday.

Tyrell said he expects to beat Kasper in the contest for GOP chairman.

"I think I will have enough votes from the suburban township committeemen alone," Tyrell said. The Republican township and ward committeemen will meet Monday to vote on a permanent replacement for Floyd Fulle, who was forced to resign the leadersip role after being convicted on federal extortion and tax evasion charges.

THE COMMITTEEMEN will cast a weighted vote in the election of the party chairman based on the number of GOP votes cast in the March 16 primary.

Tyrell did not announce plans to seek the post until late this week. He denied that he had wavered on a decision to seek the post.

While Tyrell was predicting victory, Kasper told a group of newly elected Chicago ward committeemen Friday he also would be victorious.

Several GOP officials questioned Friday said they thought the race would be close, but added they did not expect a big fight Monday.

"I believe we will know Monday morning who has the votes," said Evanston Township Republican Committeeman J. Robert Barr.

A GROUP OF North and Northwest suburban committeemen met Friday afternoon to discuss the situation. The outcome of that decision was not announced.

Some GOP leaders predicted the final decision would boil down to whether the party chairman should come from the city or the suburbs. Suburban party leaders, who dominate the county organization, have indicated they feel a suburban committeeman should be the chairman.

Kasper, who is the 35th Ward GOP committeeman, works for County State's Atty. Bernard Carey. He took over as interim party chairman after Fulle was convicted.

While some committeemen objected to the fact Fulle served as a county commissioner, township committeeman and party chairman, Tyrell said he did not think that would be a problem.

"THE CHAIRMAN should be able to delegate authority," he said.

"The former chairmen brought the problems on themselves. They should have involved other committeemen," he added.

Tyrell said if elected he would concentrate on rebuilding the party throughout the county. Besides pointing to the November general election, Tyrell said the party should begin we could have Republican aldermanic election.

"We don't have a single alderman, there are seven or eight wards where we could have Republicaan aldermen," he said.

Teamsters voting today, Sunday on new contract

Teamster union truckers and warehousemen will vote today and Sunday on the latest national contract offer by trucking industry negotiators.

Talks will continue Monday at Arlington Park Hilton hotel, Arlington Heights, if the proposal is rejected. A negative vote and strike authorization by Teamster members will allow some 400,000 workers to strike when their contract expires at midnight March 31.

The 39-month contract proposed by trucking industry officials calls for 20 per cent wage and benefits increases. Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons has called for a 30 per cent hike.

U.S. SEC. OF LABOR William Usery plans to return to Arlington Heights Tuesday for last-minute bargaining sessions if the Teamsters reject the contract offer as expected. Usery reportedly will call negotiators to Washington if the talks fail.

An over-the-road contract covering some 400,000 truckers and warehousemen and an additional 40,000 Teamster and independent truckers in the Chicago area is at stake. Trucking Employers, Inc. industry negotiators offered to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 an hour wage for local cartage by 85 cents an hour over the next three years. For over-the-road drivers the offer includes a two-cent a mile increase above the 18-cent a mile limit.

The Teamsters asked for a wage hike of $1.75 an hour over three years and a 3.5 cent increase in over-the-road mileage rates. Employers offered an $11 a week increase to the current $44 a week contribution for health, welfare and pension benefits. The Teamstern seek a $17 a week benefits increase. The Teamsters asked for three days paid sick leave a year and that all over-the-road tractors be equipped with air conditioning as of April 1, 1978.

Illinois battered by severe storms

Tornados, thunderstorms and hail swept across northern and western Illinois Friday night, causing extensive damage in some communities, particularly in the Quincy area. Severe weather warnings were in effect in the Northwest suburban area late Friday night, but the brunt of the storms hit earlier in Downstate regions. At least one tornado hit Quincy, destroying one house trailer, trees, barns and machine sheds, although no injuries were reported. Another tornado was sighted near Macomb, while hail and heavy rains pelted parts of McDonough County. Tornados also struck in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri, killing at least four and injuring more than three dozen others.

Court ballot tally ordered

Some 80,000 untallied ballots will be counted in the race between Democrats James Dooley and Judge Joseph Power for the Illinois Supreme Court, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Harry Comerford ruled Friday. However, the judge said he will rule later whether the ballots will become part of the official vote once they are counted. Dooley had attempted to block counting of the judicial ballots in 429 Chicago precincts because they were taken home untallied by election judges after the March 16 primary. With about 88 per cent of the ballots tallied, Dooley, an independent Democrat, is leading machine-backed Power by 14,000 votes. The two are competing for the Democratic Supreme Court nomination in the 1st judicial district.

Dist. 21 to cut 60 teachers

A tax referendum could be coupled with the decision to cut 60 nontenured teachers in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to offset an anticipated $1 million budget deficit. Sixty of the district's 167 nontenured teachers will be dismissed for the 1976-77 school year to save about $500,000 in salaries. Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district "will try to hire all of the teachers back" if enough vacancies occur from teacher retirements. The district currently has 420 teachers. Gill also said Friday he will ask the school board to appoint a citizens committee to study holding a tax referendum to raise additional revenues.

Tyrell predicts victory in vote for GOP leaders

by STEVE BROWN

Cook County Comr. Harold Tyrell predicted Friday he will be able to gain control of the Cook County Republican Party from Louis Kasper Monday.

Tyrell said he expects to beat Kasper in the contest for GOP chairman.

"I think I will have enough votes from the suburban township committeemen alone," Tyrell said. The Republican township and ward committeemen will meet Monday to vote on a permanent replacement for Floyd Fulle, who was forced to resign the leadersip role after being convicted on federal extortion and tax evasion charges.

THE COMMITTEEMEN will cast a weighted vote in the election of the party chairman based on the number of GOP votes cast in the March 16 primary.

Tyrell did not announce plans to seek the post until late this week. He denied that he had wavered on a decision to seek the post.

While Tyrell was predicting victory, Kasper told a group of newly elected Chicago ward committeemen Friday he also would be victorious.

Several GOP officials questioned Friday said they thought the race would be close, but added they did not expect a big fight Monday.

"I believe we will know Monday morning who has the votes," said Evanston Township Republican Committeeman J. Robert Barr.

A GROUP OF North and Northwest suburban committeemen met Friday afternoon to discuss the situation. The outcome of that decision was not announced.

Some GOP leaders predicted the final decision would boil down to whether the party chairman should come from the city or the suburbs. Suburban party leaders, who dominate the county organization, have indicated they feel a suburban committeeman should be the chairman.

Kasper, who is the 35th Ward GOP committeeman, works for County State's Atty. Bernard Carey. He took over as interim party chairman after Fulle was convicted.

While some committeemen objected to the fact Fulle served as a county commissioner, township committeeman and party chairman, Tyrell said he did not think that would be a problem.

"THE CHAIRMAN should be able to delegate authority," he said.

"The former chairmen brought the problems on themselves. They should have involved other committeemen," he added.

Tyrell said if elected he would concentrate on rebuilding the party throughout the county. Besides pointing to the November general election, Tyrell said the party should begin we could have Republican aldermanic election.

"We don't have a single alderman, there are seven or eight wards where we could have Republicaan aldermen," he said.

Teamsters voting today, Sunday on new contract

Teamster union truckers and warehousemen will vote today and Sunday on the latest national contract offer by trucking industry negotiators.

Talks will continue Monday at Arlington Park Hilton hotel, Arlington Heights, if the proposal is rejected. A negative vote and strike authorization by Teamster members will allow some 400,000 workers to strike when their contract expires at midnight March 31.

The 39-month contract proposed by trucking industry officials calls for 20 per cent wage and benefits increases. Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons has called for a 30 per cent hike.

U.S. SEC. OF LABOR William Usery plans to return to Arlington Heights Tuesday for last-minute bargaining sessions if the Teamsters reject the contract offer as expected. Usery reportedly will call negotiators to Washington if the talks fail.

An over-the-road contract covering some 400,000 truckers and warehousemen and an additional 40,000 Teamster and independent truckers in the Chicago area is at stake. Trucking Employers, Inc. industry negotiators offered to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 an hour wage for local cartage by 85 cents an hour over the next three years. For over-the-road drivers the offer includes a two-cent a mile increase above the 18-cent a mile limit.

The Teamsters asked for a wage hike of $1.75 an hour over three years and a 3.5 cent increase in over-the-road mileage rates. Employers offered an $11 a week increase to the current $44 a week contribution for health, welfare and pension benefits. The Teamstern seek a $17 a week benefits increase. The Teamsters asked for three days paid sick leave a year and that all over-the-road tractors be equipped with air conditioning as of April 1, 1978.

Videla named president of Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Army Commander Jorge Videla was named president of Argentina Friday by the three-man military junta of which he is a member. The government announced he would be sworn in on Monday.

The United States Friday formally recognized the military government which ousted President Isabel Peron and seized power in Argentina Wednesday. The U.S. expressed hope for continued cordial relations between the two countries.

Videla, 50, is a slim officer with a heavy black mustache who is considered the leader of the bloodless coup. He is a strong anti-Communist and devout Roman Catholic.

The announcement by the three-man junta came as Argentine authorities reported six persons had been killed in the first clashes between leftist guerrilla and security forces since the coup two days ago.

Buenos Aires newspapers reported the junta had arrested between 600 and 1,800 persons since the coup, many of them supporters of Mrs. Peron. Many cars were found empty and abandoned at private docks along the River Plate, indicating some Peronists fled by private boats across the river to Uruguay.

Military sources said one of those escaping was Lorenzo Miguel, the chief labor leader supporting Mrs. Peron.

The armed forces gave no figures on the numbers arrested, but witnesses said prisoners were seen being loaded aboard a heavily guarded navy transport ship in the harbor.

A government communique said U.S. Ambassador Robert Hill, returning from Washington, went to the Foreign Ministry Friday morning and "delivered a note of recognition of the government of the junta."

It added that Hill "expressed the desire of his government to continue the cordial relations that have existed between Argentina and the United States."

The military junta, made up of Videla, navy commander Adm. Emilio Massera and Air Force Lt. Gen. Orlando Agosti, ordered government bank accounts and union funds frozen until investigations into alleged corruption in the Peronist government are completed.

Before the military coup closed congress, a committee in the Chamber of Deputies was probing the misuse of funds by Social Welfare ministry.

A series of laws decreed by the junta have made strikes illegal, outlawed six tiny extreme left parties, and established heavy penalties for inciting violence or any terrorist acts. Military courts are empowered to use the death penalty.

There was no further word on the fate of Mrs. Peron who was flown to a remote mansion in the Andes Lake region, 1,000 miles southwest of Buenos Aires, early Wednesday. The junta said only that her security is guaranteed.

3 skiers killed when gondolas crash to ground

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Two gondolas loaded with skiers snapped loose from their cables and plunged 100 feet to the snowy slopes of Vail Mountain Friday. Three persons died and nine others were injured, four critically.

The dead, two girls and a boy, were not immediately identified.

The six-passenger cars of the Lionshead gondola were nearing the top of the mountain at Eagle's Nest Lodge when the mishap occurred. One car apparently snapped loose and slid back into the car behind it, sending both gondolas plummeting to the snow below.

The rest of the gondolas in the 71-car system, containing as many as 400 persons, were left dangling without power and five helicopters were brought in to rescue the occupants. Officials said there was no danger of the other cars falling.

"Ski Patrol members rode along the cable on a wheel device, stopped at each car and opened the trap-door in the top," said chief helicopter pilot Ben Locke. "They put the occupants into a bosun's chair and lowered them one by one to the ground."

Vail is the ski resort home of President Ford and the chief executive and his family have ridden the gondola many times.

A Mississippi couple said they skied by the area just after the first gondola fell.

"The gondola apparently failed to cross the top of one of the towers, became hung up and fell, top-down, to the ground." said Dr. James Barnett of Brookhaven, Miss.

"It struck the second car and knocked it down, too."

Ski Patrol members brought the injured down the slope on stretchers. Vail Valley Medical Center assessed the injuries and the four most seriously hurt were flown to St. Anthony Hospital in Denver, where an emergency team of 10 specialists were waiting.

"We called in specialists in the fields of orthopedic surgery, neurosurgery and so on," said Dr. Van Dracan, head of emergency services. "All four persons brought here had serious injuries and are in critical condition but, with help and good care, they may recover.

"There are a number of broken bones, a couple of broken backs and internal injuries," he said. "But the care in Vail was excellent and the diagnoses were complete. We were able to begin our work as soon as the patients arrived."

Dracan said four other persons, either stranded skiers or relatives of persons aboard the gondolas, were treated for cardiac problems.

Floyd Helms, who piloted one of the orange-and-yellow "Flight for Life" helicopters that carried the injured to Denver, said doctors in Vail had the situation under control.

"There was a lot of activity but it was very well organized," he said. "As the injured were brought in, doctors determined which were the most seriously hurt."

A similar but more serious incident occurred March 10 in Cavalese, Italy, when a cable car jammed with 43 skiers began to bounce and swing wildly above the slopes of Mt. Cermis.

MONTREAL RIOT police scuffled with about 250 striking teachers Friday outside the headquarters of the Protest School Board of Greater Montreal in a continuing dispute over salaries. Board officials called police when teachers tried to occupy the building.

Between Moslems, Christians

Fighting intensifies in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fighting between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians intensified Friday into a relentless war of genocide. Leftist leaders said there would never be any form of compromise with Lebanon's militant Christian leaders.

Under skies reddened by artillery and mortar barrages and fires that burned out of control, Moslem Premier Rashid Karami said, "Things are out of control and are moving at astounding speed. Nobody knows where we are heading or what destiny awaits us."

At the United Nations, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim issued a new urgent appeal to all factions in Lebanon to accept an immediate cease-fire.

The situation in the strife-torn country, he warned, "is not only a tragedy for the people of Lebanon, but there is a threat of further expansion of the fighting with potential dangers for international peace," he said.

At least 30 persons were killed and 70 wounded in the capital and around its outskirts Friday in a hell of rocket mortar and machine gun. At least 280 persons have died in the past 36 hours to bring the 11 month toll to more than 15,000 dead and 32,000 wounded.

A series of political and military moves over the past few days saw Lebanon's divided army, militia groups and nine Palestinian guerrilla organizations polarize into two factions under the leaderships of Phalangist party chief Pierre Gemayel on the right and Socialist party chief Kamal Jumblatt on the left.

Leftist leaders met with Jumblatt Friday night and declared their military offensive will not be halted "until the Phalangists are driven from their strongholds."

"We can no longer tolerate partial or patch-work solutions," their statement said.

Jumblatt was widely reported to have finally agreed to go to Damascus on Saturday for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The statement appered to rule out speculation that Jumblatt had finally agreed to accept the Syrian proposed compromise settlement he had thus far rejected.

Gemayel, who for all practical purposes has taken over the leadersip of the Maronite Christian community following President Suleiman Franjieh's flight from his shell-damaged Baabda Palace, hinted he was ready to take Lebanon's cause to the United Nations or the Arab League if the Damascus talks fail.

"If the Syrian mediation efforts fail this time, we are no strangers to the United Nations or the Arab League," Gemayel said in a radio broadcast.

Syrian efforts to reach a cease-fire between the warring factions faltered in the face of the furious battles and the refusal of Christian President Suleiman Franjieh and Moslem leader Kamal Jumblatt to budget an inch.

Jumblatt said the war would continue until Franjieh resigns. Franjieh refused while his Phalangists fought the Moslems in Beirut's once luxurious seaside area and on the heights of Mt. Lebanon.

Jumblatt threatened Franjieh's new stronghold in the port city of Jounieh 10 miles north of Beirut would be bombarded from the sea. But western sources said Franjieh controlled the tiny Lebanese navy of several patrol boats based there.

Suicide ideas tormented Nixon, publications say

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Nixon, shortly before he resigned as President because of Watergate, was tormented with the idea of suicide and once complained, "I don't have a pistol," it was reported Friday.

Nixon in his last days in office, drank too much despite his low tolerance to alcohol and was reportedly portrayed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as "our meatball President" who acted "like a madman," according to the report.

The report was published in Newsweek magazine, which is excerpting in its next two issues a soon to be published book by Bob Woodward and Carl Berstein, the Washington Post reporters credited with breaking the Watergate scandal.

According to the book, "The Final Days," during Nixon's last week in office his son-in-law, Edward Cox, told a U.S. senator the President had been up late "walking the halls . . . talking to pictures of former Presidents."

The book said that at the end, then White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig cut off Nixon's sleeping pills when the President complained to him, "You fellows, in your business (the Army), you have a way of handling problems like this. Somebody leaves a pistol in the drawer . . . I don't have a pistol."

Pat Nixon, the former First Lady, also was reported to have sought solace in alcohol and began slipping down to the servants quarters at night and returning to her private bedroom with glasses full of bourbon.

Nixon reportedly would sit for hours in his office and drink, often alone and sometimes with his press secretary Ron Ziegler. The former President also sought seclusion on the presidential yacht Sequoia to get away from the "goddam press" and those he considered his enemies.

Close to the end, Woodward and Berstein wrote, Nixon broke down and asked Kissinger to join him on his knees in the little office just off the Oval office.

"You are not a very orthodox Jew and I am not an orthodox Quaker, but we need to pray," Nixon was quoted as saying.

Woodward's and Bernstein's new book is a sequel to "All the President's Men" which dealt with the Watergate Scandal. Excerpts from "Final Days" have previously been published in Time magazine and the New York Daily News.

Turkey, U.S. sign new defense pact

The United States and Turkey signed a new defense agreement Friday — presumably reopening American bases in return for resumed military aid — but decided to keep its terms secret until the pact goes to Congress Monday. Before the State Dept. signing ceremony, however, Sec. of State Henry Kissinger indicated to reporters Turkey would reopen the U.S. military and intelligence posts it closed last year.

Guards storm jail; hostage released

Guards covered by a barrage of shotgun fire stormed the second tier of Cellblock D at Brushy Mountain State Prison in Petros, Tenn. Friday and freed a guard held hostage for nearly nine hours by club-wielding maximum security convicts. One of the rebellious convicts was wounded in the shoulder by birdshot but officials said he was not seriously hurt. State Corrections Commissioner C. Murray Henderson said prison officials decided to attack because negotiations with the prisoners, who wanted to be returned to the overcrowded State Prison in Nashville, had "failed completely" and one of the convicts was threatening to kill the hostage.

Israel reaffirms plans for unification

Israel Friday reaffirmed its intention to hang on to a unified Jerusalem. Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said the U.S. veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution averted a major rift between Washington and Jerusalem. An official spokesman said the government was determined to keep the Jewish and Arab sections of Jerusalem "united and indivisible" as "the eternal capital of Israel." He said Israel would respect and protect holy sites in Jerusalem and "administer the territories under its control with justice and fullest respect for the rights and welfare of its inhabitants."

South African troops to pull out of Angola

South African troops packed their battle kits and weapons in preparation for a total withdrawal from Angola Saturday, abandoning 4,000 black and white refugees who feared a massacre at the hands of Cuban and Angolan soldiers. A spokesman for the refugees — a South African officer said their escape route was blocked by a crocodile-infested river — indicated they probably would take to the bush. South Africa, which sent troops into Angola about nine months ago during its civil war, agreed to withdraw the troops after receiving assurances the new Soviet-backed government would not interfere with an $180 million electricity and irrigation project.

Trial date set for Indian leader

People

• The trial of American Indian Movement leader Russell Means on charges stemming from a reservation dispute was set Friday for April 6 in U.S. District Court. Also on trial will be Thomas Poor Bear. The pair are charged with interfering with Bureau of Indian Affairs police.

• Richard Arlen who was a star in silent as well as sound films during a 50-year career, was reported in very critical condition Friday at Riverside Hospital. Arlen, 75, was hospitalized four weeks ago for treatment of a severe emphysema attack. He achieved stardom in 1927 in the World War I flying picture, "Wings" and appeared in 250 films.

• Actor Henry Fonda is making continued progress recuperating from abdominal surgery, a spokesman at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital said Friday. The 70-year-old Fonda underwent surgery March 17 for removal of a large nonmalignant tumor on his diaphragm.

• Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu arrived in Athens Friday for a four-day official visit and said his country was ready to help Greece and Turkey improve their strained ties. "We wish to see in the Balkans good neighborly relations and that includes relations between Greece and Turkey," Ceausescu said. "Romania will do all it can to see that all of us in this area can live in peace and friendship."

• Sec. of Transportation William Coleman, who issued the ruling allowing the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jet airliner into the United States, said Friday he was in "no hurry" to fly on Concorde.

Between Moslems, Christians

Fighting intensifies in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fighting between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians intensified Friday into a relentless war of genocide. Leftist leaders said there would never be any form of compromise with Lebanon's militant Christian leaders.

Under skies reddened by artillery and mortar barrages and fires that burned out of control, Moslem Premier Rashid Karami said, "Things are out of control and are moving at astounding speed. Nobody knows where we are heading or what destiny awaits us."

At the United Nations, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim issued a new urgent appeal to all factions in Lebanon to accept an immediate cease-fire.

The situation in the strife-torn country, he warned, "is not only a tragedy for the people of Lebanon, but there is a threat of further expansion of the fighting with potential dangers for international peace," he said.

At least 30 persons were killed and 70 wounded in the capital and around its outskirts Friday in a hell of rocket mortar and machine gun. At least 280 persons have died in the past 36 hours to bring the 11 month toll to more than 15,000 dead and 32,000 wounded.

A series of political and military moves over the past few days saw Lebanon's divided army, militia groups and nine Palestinian guerrilla organizations polarize into two factions under the leaderships of Phalangist party chief Pierre Gemayel on the right and Socialist party chief Kamal Jumblatt on the left.

Leftist leaders met with Jumblatt Friday night and declared their military offensive will not be halted "until the Phalangists are driven from their strongholds."

"We can no longer tolerate partial or patch-work solutions," their statement said.

Jumblatt was widely reported to have finally agreed to go to Damascus on Saturday for talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The statement appered to rule out speculation that Jumblatt had finally agreed to accept the Syrian proposed compromise settlement he had thus far rejected.

Gemayel, who for all practical purposes has taken over the leadersip of the Maronite Christian community following President Suleiman Franjieh's flight from his shell-damaged Baabda Palace, hinted he was ready to take Lebanon's cause to the United Nations or the Arab League if the Damascus talks fail.

"If the Syrian mediation efforts fail this time, we are no strangers to the United Nations or the Arab League," Gemayel said in a radio broadcast.

Syrian efforts to reach a cease-fire between the warring factions faltered in the face of the furious battles and the refusal of Christian President Suleiman Franjieh and Moslem leader Kamal Jumblatt to budget an inch.

Jumblatt said the war would continue until Franjieh resigns. Franjieh refused while his Phalangists fought the Moslems in Beirut's once luxurious seaside area and on the heights of Mt. Lebanon.

Jumblatt threatened Franjieh's new stronghold in the port city of Jounieh 10 miles north of Beirut would be bombarded from the sea. But western sources said Franjieh controlled the tiny Lebanese navy of several patrol boats based there.

Suicide ideas tormented Nixon, publications say

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Nixon, shortly before he resigned as President because of Watergate, was tormented with the idea of suicide and once complained, "I don't have a pistol," it was reported Friday.

Nixon in his last days in office, drank too much despite his low tolerance to alcohol and was reportedly portrayed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as "our meatball President" who acted "like a madman," according to the report.

The report was published in Newsweek magazine, which is excerpting in its next two issues a soon to be published book by Bob Woodward and Carl Berstein, the Washington Post reporters credited with breaking the Watergate scandal.

According to the book, "The Final Days," during Nixon's last week in office his son-in-law, Edward Cox, told a U.S. senator the President had been up late "walking the halls . . . talking to pictures of former Presidents."

The book said that at the end, then White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig cut off Nixon's sleeping pills when the President complained to him, "You fellows, in your business (the Army), you have a way of handling problems like this. Somebody leaves a pistol in the drawer . . . I don't have a pistol."

Pat Nixon, the former First Lady, also was reported to have sought solace in alcohol and began slipping down to the servants quarters at night and returning to her private bedroom with glasses full of bourbon.

Nixon reportedly would sit for hours in his office and drink, often alone and sometimes with his press secretary Ron Ziegler. The former President also sought seclusion on the presidential yacht Sequoia to get away from the "goddam press" and those he considered his enemies.

Close to the end, Woodward and Berstein wrote, Nixon broke down and asked Kissinger to join him on his knees in the little office just off the Oval office.

"You are not a very orthodox Jew and I am not an orthodox Quaker, but we need to pray," Nixon was quoted as saying.

Woodward's and Bernstein's new book is a sequel to "All the President's Men" which dealt with the Watergate Scandal. Excerpts from "Final Days" have previously been published in Time magazine and the New York Daily News.

Turkey, U.S. sign new defense pact

The United States and Turkey signed a new defense agreement Friday — presumably reopening American bases in return for resumed military aid — but decided to keep its terms secret until the pact goes to Congress Monday. Before the State Dept. signing ceremony, however, Sec. of State Henry Kissinger indicated to reporters Turkey would reopen the U.S. military and intelligence posts it closed last year.

Guards storm jail; hostage released

Guards covered by a barrage of shotgun fire stormed the second tier of Cellblock D at Brushy Mountain State Prison in Petros, Tenn. Friday and freed a guard held hostage for nearly nine hours by club-wielding maximum security convicts. One of the rebellious convicts was wounded in the shoulder by birdshot but officials said he was not seriously hurt. State Corrections Commissioner C. Murray Henderson said prison officials decided to attack because negotiations with the prisoners, who wanted to be returned to the overcrowded State Prison in Nashville, had "failed completely" and one of the convicts was threatening to kill the hostage.

Israel reaffirms plans for unification

Israel Friday reaffirmed its intention to hang on to a unified Jerusalem. Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said the U.S. veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution averted a major rift between Washington and Jerusalem. An official spokesman said the government was determined to keep the Jewish and Arab sections of Jerusalem "united and indivisible" as "the eternal capital of Israel." He said Israel would respect and protect holy sites in Jerusalem and "administer the territories under its control with justice and fullest respect for the rights and welfare of its inhabitants."

South African troops to pull out of Angola

South African troops packed their battle kits and weapons in preparation for a total withdrawal from Angola Saturday, abandoning 4,000 black and white refugees who feared a massacre at the hands of Cuban and Angolan soldiers. A spokesman for the refugees — a South African officer said their escape route was blocked by a crocodile-infested river — indicated they probably would take to the bush. South Africa, which sent troops into Angola about nine months ago during its civil war, agreed to withdraw the troops after receiving assurances the new Soviet-backed government would not interfere with an $180 million electricity and irrigation project.

Trial date set for Indian leader

People

• The trial of American Indian Movement leader Russell Means on charges stemming from a reservation dispute was set Friday for April 6 in U.S. District Court. Also on trial will be Thomas Poor Bear. The pair are charged with interfering with Bureau of Indian Affairs police.

• Richard Arlen who was a star in silent as well as sound films during a 50-year career, was reported in very critical condition Friday at Riverside Hospital. Arlen, 75, was hospitalized four weeks ago for treatment of a severe emphysema attack. He achieved stardom in 1927 in the World War I flying picture, "Wings" and appeared in 250 films.

• Actor Henry Fonda is making continued progress recuperating from abdominal surgery, a spokesman at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital said Friday. The 70-year-old Fonda underwent surgery March 17 for removal of a large nonmalignant tumor on his diaphragm.

• Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu arrived in Athens Friday for a four-day official visit and said his country was ready to help Greece and Turkey improve their strained ties. "We wish to see in the Balkans good neighborly relations and that includes relations between Greece and Turkey," Ceausescu said. "Romania will do all it can to see that all of us in this area can live in peace and friendship."

• Sec. of Transportation William Coleman, who issued the ruling allowing the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jet airliner into the United States, said Friday he was in "no hurry" to fly on Concorde.

Spring—'tis the season to be wary of tornados the ground. As the storm moves, the funnel picks up dirt and debris that darkens its color.

A tornado does not need to touch ground to cause damage. Intense updrafts can lift dust and debris thousands of feet into the air even when the funnel does not reach the ground.

Changnon said there are three basic types of tornados:

• Small, with diameters of a few yards and paths of one to two miles. He said these often appear to be "fluttering or dancing ropes."

• Medium-sized, often appearing as the funnel cloud many people recognize. These tornados have diameters of 100 to 300 yards and paths of 5 to 15 miles.

• Large, with diameters of one to one and one-half miles and paths of up to 150 miles and more. Changnon said that because of their immense size, these tornados seldom appear to have a funnel.

Changnon said the huge twisters account for only 1 per cent of all tornados, but cause 20 per cent of tornado damage in the U.S.

He said one of the deadliest tornados on record occurred on March 18, 1925. Appearing as a dark, ponderous thunderstorm very close to the ground, the massive tornado plowed a 220-mile path from Missouri, across Illinois to Indiana, killing 695 persons, injuring 2,000 and causing $16.5 million in property damage.

Severe tornados have hit in Illinois in south suburban Oak Lawn and Crystal Lake in McHenry County.

Formation of a tornado: A storm within a storm created by swirling winds.

HE SAID increased population densities in many areas heighten the chances of severe losses of life and property, in spite of radar and other sophisticated detection devices and immediate warning to residents by radio and television.

At one time it was thought people could use their television sets to detect severe storms. By warming up the set and tuning in to Channel 13, darkening the screen to almost black using the brightness control and then switching to Channel 2 and leaving the volume down, it was thought lightening would produce white bands across the screen. However, a spokesman for the National Safety Council said this method is not dependable.

The safest bet is to listen to radio and television reports of tornado watches and warnings. The safest place to be during a tornado is inside an underground storm cellar or a sturdily constructed building, Changnon said. He suggested several other precautions for survival:

• Stay away from windows;

• Open windows to help equalize pressure between the partial vaccum created by the tornado and the inside of the building;

• Avoid rooms with large edge-supported roofs, such as gymnasiums and auditoriums. Instead, stay in an interior hallway on a lower floor;

• Move to the center of a basement or the lower floor of a house and avoid all outside walls. Contrary to popular belief, Changnon said, debris collects near outside walls if the house collapses, while the center is freer of such materials;

• Avoid mobile homes since they are easily tipped over by tornados;

• If caught in the open, move at right angles away from the tornado's path. If escape is impossible, lie face down in a ditch or a ravine.

Changnon said anyone sighting a severe thunderstorm or tornado should report it immediately to the nearest National Weather Service station or law enforcement agency. Collect telephone calls are authorized if the operator is told the situation is an emergency, he said.

RTA pact to hold down fare boost

The Regional Transportation Authority and the Illinois Central Gulf R.R. reached tentative agreement Friday on a purchase of service agreement expected to hold down fare increases for Chicago commuters.

The tentative agreement, termed a multimillion-dollar accord, was announced in a joint news conference by Milton Pikarsky, the RTA chairman, and Percy W. Johnston, ICG general counsel.

Spokesmen said the agreement would prevent immediate fare increases and could forestall rate hikes for three years.

The tentative agreement, which must be approved by boards of directors on either side, provides a base payment of $9.5 million by the RTA to the railroad for purchase of its commuter service to be run by ICG personnel.

On March 5 the Interstate Commerce Commission, acting in Washington, granted the ICG permission to raise commuter fares an average 37 per cent.

The new fares have not been put in force and Pikarsky said he did not expect there would be any fare increases during the length of the ICG-RTA contract which would run retroactively from last July to June 30, 1978.

Johnson said he would ask the Washington-based commission to vacate its approval of the fare increase.

2 charged in road murders

Two Chicago men were charged with murder today in the long unsolved Interstate 57 shotgun slayings of a young couple in 1973 in southern Cook County.

Charged with murder and armed robbery were Stanley Charleston, 22, a Chicago livery cab driver, and Darrell Thompson, 20, a busboy.

State's Atty. Bernard Carey said at least two other persons were being sought.

Carey said the two men were charged with the "senseless slayings" of Dorothy Cerny, 25, a Chicago school teacher, and her fiance, James Schmidt, 25, a cartage supervisor for a Chicago freight firm, June 3, 1973, along Interstate 57 south of Chicago near Country Club Hills.

TB infected cattle slain

A state veterinarian said Friday 443 dairy cattle have been slaughtered in McHenry County because of bovine tuberculosis and officials are trying to prevent another possible outbreak in eastern and southern Illinois.

Officials in Wisconsin, fearing a spread of the disease, have suspended a reciprocal agreement with Illinois that permits movement of cattle between the two states without a tuberculosis test.

Dr. Paul Spencer, Illinois Dept. of Agriculture's chief veterinarian in the Bureau of Animal Health, said the origin of the northern Illinois outbreak was traced to a herd of cattle in McHenry County on Jan. 30, 1976.

Dist. 21 cuts 60 teachers from next year's staff

by DIANE GRANAT

Sixty nontenured teachers in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will receive dismissal notices for the 1976-77 school year.

The Dist. 21 Board of Education voted Thursday to send notices this week to 60 of the district's 167 nontenured teachers informing them that they will not be rehired for the coming school year.

The board is cutting 50 teaching positions for the 1976-77 school year to offset an anticipated $1 million budget deficit. The district has about 420 teachers this year, and the cuts would save about $500,000 in teachers salaries.

SUPT. KENNETH Gill said 60 persons are affected by the cuts because the 50 positions eliminated also involve part-time teachers.

"We will try to hire all of the teachers back if there is enough attrition," Gill said Friday. The released teachers all received adequate evaluations, he said.

The board passed a motion Thursday that said the teachers who are dismissed will be hired back as vacancies occur.

Board member Jeremiah Crise said the motion was to reaffirm part of the teachers' contract, which requires the district to give rehiring priority to the released teachers.

"WE DID not take the dismissing of these 50 teachers lightly," Crise said. "If we could have found another way we would have done it, but the alternative would be deficit financing."

The Dist. 21 teachers union two weeks ago asked the board to come up with a contingency plan for rehiring the teachers. The teachers union also said the district used a "secret rating scale" to evaluate who would be fired and asked the board to reveal each teacher's ranking.

Board Pres. Kenneth Rodeck said Thursday the teachers' contract requires the district to first cut nontenured teachers with the lowest evaluations or qualifications to fill the position.

"THE RATING system was not secret and all affected teachers were informed of the process and the rating factors which were used, and all teachers affected have been informed," Rodeck said.

All nontenured teachers were told Thursday what their numerical rating was on the evaluation scale, Gill said.

Dist. 21 teachers union officials could not be reached for comment Friday.

The board Thursday heard a revenue report from the Illinois Office of Education based on its analysis of Dist. 21 finances. The state education office projected about $375,000 more in revenue than the board had predicted.

HOWEVER, DIST. 21 administrators said the additional money will not be available and they still expect a $1 million deficit.

Gill said the difference in their projections was because the Illinois Office of Education predicted constant revenue from some federally funded programs that the district will not have next year.

Those items include $175,000 in a federally funded self-renewal program for teachers and $60,000 in the district's bilingual program, Gill said.

Dist. 21 seeks tax vote input

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said Friday he will ask the school board to appoint a citizens' committee to study the possibility of holding a tax referendum.

Dist. 21 faces a financial crunch that will create a $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget if additional revenues are not found and if spending is not reduced.

The board now plans to eliminate 50 teaching positions in the coming year and make reductions in the administrative staff and in materials and supplies to prevent the anticipated deficit.

The board Thursday heard suggestions from the Illinois Office of Education on ways to increase the district's income. The measures include holding a referendum to raise taxes and issuing tax anticipation warrants, which would allow the district to borrow from next year's taxes.

The state office said, however, that the funds acquired from a tax increase would not be available until the 1977-78 school year.

Several parents attending the board meeting Thursday asked the board to consider holding a tax referendum instead of making the budget cutbacks.

Apartment blaze routs residents

Fire broke out late Friday night in a bedroom of a third-floor apartment at 2206 Oak Creek Dr. in the Oak Creek apartments, Buffalo Grove.

No injuries were reported in the blaze, which was confined to the bedroom.

Buffalo Grove Fire Lt. Clifford Burmeister said 36 apartments were evacuated as firemen attempted to extinguish the blaze.

Names of the apartment occupants were not immediately known.

Firemen from Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights took 30 minutes to extinguish the blaze, which Burmeister described as a "small fire."

He said, however, the fire caused extensive smoke damage.

The fire was reported at 11 p.m. at the complex near Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads.

Burmeister said the cause of the blaze is under investigation.

The story on the front page was painful for David Hart.

It was not his young son that had been struck by a car. Not this time, but it was 13 months ago.

"That's why I called. Everytime I read about a child being hit or I see one on a bicycle, I think about the parents," said Hart of 702 S. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights.

Although the situations are not parallel, they are similar enough to prompt Hart to share his feelings so that, perhaps, others do not have to experience them.

TUESDAY, A GROUP of youngsters were on their way to school. Five-year-old Karl Wahl cut across the street and into the path of a car and was struck.

Reported in fair condition Friday, young Karl suffered a fractured skull and leg.

Hart's youngest son, Christopher, 15, was not so fortunate last February. Christopher was pronounced dead at Northwest Community Hospital after he and his friends were run down by a car as they rode their bicycles on Kirchoff Road.

When Hart called, he had trouble finding the proper words.

"If I could somehow keep the same thing from happening to just one other parent or family," he said and paused.

HE SPOKE OF Christopher and his friends just "horsing around in the garage" that warm February night.

"Then 25 minutes later I got a call from a police officer asking me to come to the hospital because Chris had been in an accident. It never dawned on me. How could he be in an accident, he didn't drive a car," Hart recalled.

"It's hard to tell what happens then. There's this absolute absence. He's gone — bang. Suddenly there's a big hole in the family," Hart said.

There was frustration in Hart's voice. He spoke of the things he felt like doing but never did.

"I was tempted to take Chris' bicycle and mount it on the lawn and put up a sign telling parents not to let it happen to your child," he said.

PERHAPS, HE SAID, the police photographs showing the results of the child's head going through a car windshield would startle drivers into responsibility.

"Just tell them that this is what happens," he said.

More caution, more responsibility, just think what a ton-and-a-half of car can do to a person, that's what Hart wanted to say.

"They show the kids movies about drugs and how horrible overdoses are. Maybe they should show them pictures of hideous accidents. I don't know. Really, what can you do?" he asked.

"It happens to other people, not me, you think when you heard about things like this. Then it does happen to you and you know exactly what goes on. You don't want it to happen to anyone else," Hart said.

geographic divisions of responsibilities.

Kath said the Cincinnati Police Dept. went to a team system, but had to augment it with many auxiliary policemen who received extensive training and were paid at the rate of probationary patrolmen.

He said that with team policing, lines of communications between command and field personnel can become tangled, and command officers sometimes lack the specialized training to effectively use all members of the "team."

The preliminary police department response calls for modified restructuring of the force with a chief, a deputy chief and two captains. The captains, under the proposal, would divide the duties of operations and administration.

THE RESTRUCTURING would, however, retain the specialized units within the department.

Kath said the police group preparing the report has been working on it for about three weeks and it should be in final form within two weeks.

The report will be made available to the village administration and trustees.

High school offers 'A Hatful of Rain'

"A Hatful of Rain" will be presented by Buffalo Grove High School students today.

The play by Michael Grazzo will be presented at 8 p.m. in the school theater, 1100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove. The play is the story of Johnny Pope, a young war hero and prisoner of war who, while recovering in an army hospital, becomes addicted to the pain killing drug morphine. Pope is discharged and rejoins his family as an addict. The drama unfolds when his condition becomes apparent and affects the people who care for him.

Tickets are $1.50 and may be purchased at the box office on the night of the performance. The play is directed by John Marquette with Kate Schafer as technical director.

Dist. 21 cuts 60 teachers from next year's staff

by DIANE GRANAT

Sixty nontenured teachers in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will receive dismissal notices for the 1976-77 school year.

The Dist. 21 Board of Education voted Thursday to send notices this week to 60 of the district's 167 nontenured teachers informing them that they will not be rehired for the coming school year.

The board is cutting 50 teaching positions for the 1976-77 school year to offset an anticipated $1 million budget deficit. The district has about 420 teachers this year, and the cuts would save about $500,000 in teachers salaries.

SUPT. KENNETH Gill said 60 persons are affected by the cuts because the 50 positions eliminated also involve part-time teachers.

"We will try to hire all of the teachers back if there is enough attrition," Gill said Friday. The released teachers all received adequate evaluations, he said.

The board passed a motion Thursday that said the teachers who are dismissed will be hired back as vacancies occur.

Board member Jeremiah Crise said the motion was to reaffirm part of the teachers' contract, which requires the district to give rehiring priority to the released teachers.

"WE DID not take the dismissing of these 50 teachers lightly," Crise said. "If we could have found another way we would have done it, but the alternative would be deficit financing."

The Dist. 21 teachers union two weeks ago asked the board to come up with a contingency plan for rehiring the teachers. The teachers union also said the district used a "secret rating scale" to evaluate who would be fired and asked the board to reveal each teacher's ranking.

Board Pres. Kenneth Rodeck said Thursday the teachers' contract requires the district to first cut nontenured teachers with the lowest evaluations or qualifications to fill the position.

"THE RATING system was not secret and all affected teachers were informed of the process and the rating factors which were used, and all teachers affected have been informed," Rodeck said.

All nontenured teachers were told Thursday what their numerical rating was on the evaluation scale, Gill said.

Dist. 21 teachers union officials could not be reached for comment Friday.

The board Thursday heard a revenue report from the Illinois Office of Education based on its analysis of Dist. 21 finances. The state education office projected about $375,000 more in revenue than the board had predicted.

HOWEVER, DIST. 21 administrators said the additional money will not be available and they still expect a $1 million deficit.

Gill said the difference in their projections was because the Illinois Office of Education predicted constant revenue from some federally funded programs that the district will not have next year.

Those items include $175,000 in a federally funded self-renewal program for teachers and $60,000 in the district's bilingual program, Gill said.

Dist. 21 seeks tax vote input

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said Friday he will ask the school board to appoint a citizens' committee to study the possibility of holding a tax referendum.

Dist. 21 faces a financial crunch that will create a $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget if additional revenues are not found and if spending is not reduced.

The board now plans to eliminate 50 teaching positions in the coming year and make reductions in the administrative staff and in materials and supplies to prevent the anticipated deficit.

The board Thursday heard suggestions from the Illinois Office of Education on ways to increase the district's income. The measures include holding a referendum to raise taxes and issuing tax anticipation warrants, which would allow the district to borrow from next year's taxes.

The state office said, however, that the funds acquired from a tax increase would not be available until the 1977-78 school year.

Several parents attending the board meeting Thursday asked the board to consider holding a tax referendum instead of making the budget cutbacks.

Apartment blaze routs residents

Fire broke out late Friday night in a bedroom of a third-floor apartment at 2206 Oak Creek Dr. in the Oak Creek apartments, Buffalo Grove.

No injuries were reported in the blaze, which was confined to the bedroom.

Buffalo Grove Fire Lt. Clifford Burmeister said 36 apartments were evacuated as firemen attempted to extinguish the blaze.

Names of the apartment occupants were not immediately known.

Firemen from Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights took 30 minutes to extinguish the blaze, which Burmeister described as a "small fire."

He said, however, the fire caused extensive smoke damage.

The fire was reported at 11 p.m. at the complex near Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads.

Burmeister said the cause of the blaze is under investigation.

Factual look at controversial issue

Scholar writes book on exorcism

World of religion
by David E. Anderson

Malachi Martin, a former Jesuit, Dead Sea scroll scholar and friend of Pope John XXIII, is hardly the type one would expect to find writing a book about exorcism.

But Martin, an urbane, witty and intense writer and scholar, not only has written a book on the subject but also has participated as an assistant in some dozen actual exorcisms.

The book, "Hostage to the Devil," (Readers Digest Press) is, however, a far cry from the fictional and cinematic treatment of exorcism, a subject that passed through the American fancy immediately preceding its most current fascination with the horrifying — sharks.

Martin maintains he doesn't have to fictionalize. Using interviews with both the possessed and the exorcists and the tape recorded transcripts of the actual exorcisms, he creates a story that is as compelling as any novel or movie.

DEVIL OR DEMON possession is a controversial issue in the churches these days. Most church officials, of all denominations, prefer to ignore discussion of the subject.

In one denomination that recently has addressed the issue, the Presbyterian Church in the U.S., the Council on Theology and Culture, has determined that the casting out of demons "is not a function of ministers in the denomination." Their determination will be brought to the denomination's General Assembly meeting this year along with a recommendation that regional courts — presbyteries — of the church counsel any minister caught practicing exorcism and "advising what to do if he-she wants to remain in good standing in the presbytery."

Among Roman Catholics, Martin notes, there is not public appointment of exorcists, although in earlier times one priest usually was assigned the function in each diocese. This practice, he said, has in many diocese fallen into abeyance.

FOR MANY Christians, however, the problem of transcendent, personalized evil is a real and troubling one.

"Possession is not a process of magic," says Martin. "Evil Spirit is personal, and it is intelligent" and while it is not of the material world it is in the world, he maintains.

In his book Martin presents five case histories of possession, plus the story of exorcist Father Michael Strong, a handbook on exorcism and a "manual of possession" — all of it fascinating.

A major departure from the sensational fiction accounts of exorcism is Martin's emphasis on the role of the exorcist rather than on the sound effect noises or the grisly distortions of the possessed, although they are there, too.

"THE EXORCIST is the centerpiece of every exorcism," Martin maintains. "On him depends everything. He has nothing personal to gain. But in each exorcism, he risks literally everything he values."

He also must have official church sanction "for he is acting in an official capacity, and any power he has over Evil Spirit can only come from those officials who belong to the substance of Jesus' Church, whether they be in the Roman Catholic, the Eastern Orthodox or the Protestant Communions."

"Once engaged," Martin says, "the exorcism cannot be called off. There will and must always be a victor and a vanquished. And no matter what the outcome, the contact is in part fatal for the exorcist . . . Something dies in him. Some part of his humanness will wither from such close contact with the opposite of all humaness — the essence of evil . . . No return will be made to him for his loss."

C&NW faces suit for safety offense

The Chicago and North Western Ry. is one of 14 railroads being sued by the Illinois Attorney General's office for ignoring an important safety order of the Illinois Commerce Commission.

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said the railroads had been given more than two years to comply with an order to install reflectorized crossbucks or signs at railroad crossings.

Acting on behalf of the commission, Scott said the railroads' disregard of the order is a clear violation of the public utilities act. "The railroads' failure to obey this order shows an utter lack of regard for the safety of the people they serve," he said.

The lawsuit asks that each day the railroads fail to comply be counted as a separate offense. The penalty for failing to comply with the order is fines ranging from $500 to $2,000.

Other railroads named in the suit include the Baltimore and Ohio; Chicago and Illinois Western; Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; Davenport, Rock Island and North Western; Penn Central; Peoria and Eastern; Illinois Central Gulf; Chicago and Eastern Illinois; Illinois Terminal; Missouri Pacific; Louisville and Nashville; Missouri Illinois; and Peoria and Pekin Union railways.

Ethics petitioning to start Apr. 3

The Coalition for Political Honesty plans to renew its effort to get three political ethics' amendments on the November ballot with a massive petition sign-in April 3.

Patrick Quinn, a group spokesman, said the coalition hopes to get 50,000 signatures that day.

Quinn said the group will have 250,000 signatures by April 3. He said 375,000 signatures are needed to get the constitutional amendments on the ballot in November.

"When the General Assembly reconvenes April 5, we want every state legislator to understand the citizens of Illinois demand tough, no-loophole ethics legislations.

The proposed amendments would prohibit legislators from taking their salaries in advance, ban double dipping and strengthen the state's conflict-of-interest laws.

Rep. Macdonald sets fund-raiser April 4

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will host a fund-raising brunch April 4 at The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

Magician Marshall Brodien and music will be feated as entertainment.

Tickets for the event are priced at $10 per person and may be obtained by calling 255-4664.

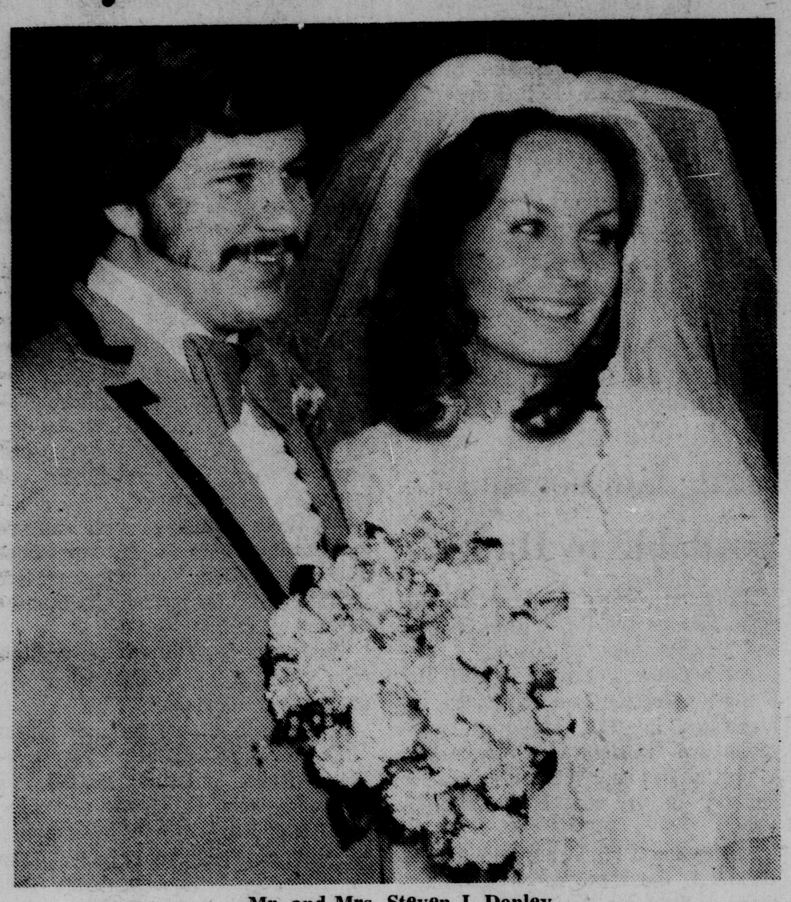
Weddings

Gayle Petersen – Steven J. Denley



Mr. and Mrs. Steven J. Denley

Gayle Adair Petersen and her bridegroom, Steven James Denley, newlyweds of Feb. 14, are now making their home in South Bend, Ind., where Steven is employed in nearby Mishawaka by United Conveyor Corp.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard H. Petersen, Mount Prospect, Gayle is a '74 graduate of Hersey High, and until her marriage was employed by First National Bank of Mount Prospect. Steven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Denley, Prospect Heights, is a '71 graduate of Wheeling High. He also received an associate degree in business administration from Harper College in 1973.

THEIR WEDDING took place at 1:30 p.m. in St. Emily Church, Mount Prospect, with Deborah L. Boryca of Mount Prospect as maid of honor and the groom's sister, Mary, and the bride's cousin, Nancy L. Schug of South Holland, Ill., as bridesmaids. Best man was the bride's brother, Wayne, and ushers were Ronald N. Magnuson, Mount Prospect, and Nick Accettura, Hoffman Estates.

The double ring service was followed by a reception for 75 in the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. The newlyweds honeymooned at the Regency Hyatt House.

Ruth Ann Landreth—Kenneth D. Wood

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth D. Wood

Ruth Ann Landreth and Kenneth Dean Wood returned to Camp Forest Springs in Westboro, Wis., where they first met, to honeymoon after their Feb. 28 wedding. They became acquainted during the summer when Ruth was camp nurse and Dean a counselor.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Landreth, Rolling Meadows, Ruth is a graduate of Forest View High, Moody Bible Institute and Northern Illinois University. She is employed as a public health nurse by DuPage County Health Department.

Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Darlington, Wis., studied at the University of Wisconsin in Madison and Platteville and also Prairie Bible Institute, Three Hills, Alta., Canada. He is employed by Lorlyn Apartments in West Chicago where the couple resides.

MARRIED AT 2 p.m. in a candlelight, double ring service in Meadows Baptist Church, Ruth chose an ivory satin gown covered with organza and trimmed in lace. She made her own lace-trimmed veil, and carried a nosegay of white roses and stephanotis with carnations and baby's breath. For "something old" she wore her grandmother's engagement ring and carried the hanky her grandmother carried at her wedding.

In peach princess gowns trimmed in lace were Ruth's honor attendants, her sisters Janet and Carol. Their flowers were nosegays of peach roses and carnations with baby's breath.

Best man was Ron McReynolds, Rib Lake, Wis., and groomsman was Jack Morris, Monroe, Wis. Ushers were Ken Olsen, Bull Shoals, Ark.; Rob Kruse, Oak Park; Paul Cochenour, Arlington Heights; and Bill Fourman, cousin of the bride from Bradford, Ohio.

A reception for 250 guests was held in the church's Fellowship Hall.

When buying furniture

Young defy tradition

by BROOKE W. KROEGER

Young people defy tradition when they buy furniture, and manufacturers and retailers are doing all they can to lure those big buying dollars.

"When you talk about a buying group you talk about an age group," says Tom Lyman, who is in charge of Chicago's American Mart. "People between the ages of 18 and 35 have the buying power now in this country. There isn't a manufacturer around who doesn't have stuff in his line pitched at this group."

The group includes many newlyweds, and a survey for Modern Bride magazine indicates that the number of young households in the United States is expected to increase 35 per cent between 1975 and 1985, compared with total population growth of only eight per cent.

Industry observers say these young shoppers are buying good, comfortable, easily moved furniture in natural tones and pastels.

"PEOPLE TODAY have money and can afford good furniture," Lyman said. "But what they buy is what's comfortable, what's easily moved."

Larry Russell, who owned a furniture store in a working class neighborhood of Kansas City, Kan., says he now sells better furniture than ever before.

"Even people who don't have a lot of money are buying better furniture," he said. "They buy on time, on payments, and by the time they get cheaper furniture paid for, it's shot. Better furniture doesn't make a great deal of difference on the down or monthly payments, so when they're through paying for it, at least they've got something."

Casual furniture, which once could only be found on patios or beaches, now graces living rooms in the most fashionable homes, said Sherie Van Gelderen of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers in Washington.

"THE TREND IS toward everything lighter scale, movable, modular, upholstered sectionals, collapsibles and sling chairs," she said.

Another favorite is K.D., or knock-down, assemble-it-yourself pieces, which save on shipping costs and can be moved around more easily.

Dick Butler, a color consultant formerly with Sears Roebuck Co., said young people today have a new freedom in decorating their homes.

"There is a lack of ground rules that their parents might have known," Butler said. "Young people are fed up with the plastic world and like real wood and real leather. They like plastic only to look like plastic, not plastic pretending to be wood."

Butler said earth and natural tones of the past three years still dominate color choices, but there also are more pastels: softer mauves, peach, rose, green, ivory, teal blue and aqua. "Lots of colors are influenced by the Art Deco style trend."

MICHAEL SAINSBURY, store design director for Homemakers, Chicago's largest volume dealer to the 18-to-35 market, says hardly anyone buys dining room sets any more.

"The masses no longer build large dining rooms," he said. "So young people buy a game table or an expensive dinette set at, say $565, which is a lot less than a dining room set."

He said sofa beds also are popular for their space-saving features.

Kendra Underwood—Patrick Loyal

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Loyal

Two Wheeling families, the junior Kenneth Underwoods and the Anton J. Loyals, were united Feb. 14 when Kendra Underwood became the bride of Patrick Loyal.

Kendra and Patrick, both graduates of Wheeling High and both employes of Litho-Art Products, Inc., Wheeling, were married in St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, in a 3 p.m. double ring service. They are now residing in their new home in Lake in the Hills.

The groom's sister, Linda, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were his sister, Diana Kopper, Wheeling; a cousin, Shelley Roberts from Portage, Ind.; and Diane Johnson, Buffalo Grove.

BEST MAN was Robert Moran Jr., Wheeling, and ushers were the groom's brother-in-law, Jeff Kopper; his brothers, Dan and Steve; the bride's brother, Kirk; and Hank Kmieciak, Wilmette.

A dinner reception for 160 guests was held at Tarney's Black Fox in Mundelein.

Ginna Warren—Steven Buzzelli

Mr. and Mrs. Steven C. Buzzelli

Ginna Warren's uncle, the Rev. Charles Higgins, came from Pelham, N.H., to assist in the ceremony Feb. 14 in which she became the bride of Steven C. Buzzelli. The 4:30 double ring, candlelight service was held in Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, Mount Prospect.

Ginna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Warren, Elk Grove Village, and Steven, who has been making his home in Des Plaines, is the son of Mrs. Lois Buzzelli, Bard, Calif., and Frank Buzzelli, San Diego, Calif.

Attending Ginna as matron of honor was Kari Montemayor of Elk Grove, and bridesmaids were Denise Deevey, Elk Grove, and Nancy Welsh, Rolling Meadows.

LEO MONTEMAYOR, Elk Grove, was best man, and ushers were the bride's twin brother, Michael, and John Rallins, Louisville, Ky.

A reception for 130 guests was held in the Brandywine Restaurant, Elk Grove, after which the newlyweds honeymooned two weeks in Las Vegas and in California. They are now at home in Des Plaines.

A '75 graduate of Elk Grove High, Ginna is employed by Croydon China, Woodfield. Her bridegroom, a graduate of a San Diego high school, is traffic manager for Bestline Products, Elk Grove Village.

Drexel offers interior design seminars

Interior design seminars, designed to aid consumers in their home decorating, will be conducted by professional design consultants at Drexel Heritage Showcase by Plunkett Furniture, 955 E. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights.

"Creative Decorating for Today's Home," is scheduled for Tuesday March 30, with "Interior Furnishings Styles and Arrangements" held one week later on April 6. Identical morning and evening sessions will be given each day at 9:45 and 7.

The programs will cover styles, color schemes, lighting and furniture arrangements, as well as coordination of various furniture styles and complete accessorizing.

The sessions are free. For information and reservations, readers should contact Mrs. Norman at 392-1000.

7th Dist. Juniors give $5000 plus to projects

More than $5,000 will be donated by the Seventh District Junior Organization this year to support selected district, state and national projects.

The club's fund-raising efforts included house walks, rummage sales and art auctions. Jewelry sales, Operation Trick or Toy and donations in place of Christmas greeting cards were also conducted, in addition to regular fund-raising activities.

Combined, the local Juniors, composed of clubs in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Streamwood, gave the following amounts:

- $2,800 to the Brain Research Foundation, devoted to the study of the brain and nervous systems.
- $900 to Aid to Teachers of Exceptional Children, a scholarship program for state university students in special education.
- $400 to Project Concern, an international medical and dental non-profit organization.
- $400 to the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities in Arlington Heights and local schools.
- And other earnings to the Arthritic Foundation and Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Old photo albums valued for book and pictures

I read in the paper that the public is being urged by the Postal Service to write more letters, for it seems that even with rate increases, they're still in the red. The goal, the newspaper article said, is to raise personal correspondence by five per cent. That means I have to start writing to Aunt Blanche again, even though we had a tiff 16 years ago.

I am not what you would call a popular correspondent. I receive a letter one day and answer it the next, which you would think would improve friendships, but not so. My friends are infuriated that they once again owe me a letter.

All this has nothing to do with the subject of today's column, old photo albums, except that the postage rate was one cent in the days when everyone had such an album displayed on the parlor table, and a letter mailed in the morning arrived that evening, if it were in the same town.

EARLY ALBUMS, pre-Civil War, were always small, about five by eight inches, and were used to hold tintypes, not for paper or cardboard prints. Later ones are larger, usually about 9 by 11 inches. The covers vary, from cloth-covered cardboard, papier mache, velvet, celluloid, etc., and some are studded with mother of pearl or "jewels."

Mine, pictured, is of celluloid with a velvet backbinding. Some pages have space for only one picture, while some hold two or four. The pages are made of stiff cardboard with slots or pockets to hold the pictures. The book is held together with brass colored clasps. Other more elaborate albums may incorporate a music box, and I have seen a double album which was really two separate books mounted on a stand, with pages that opened in opposite directions at the same time.

THE COVERS were patterned with floral designs, children, animals or patriotic and sentimental pictures and messages. These were meant to be displayed to company and gave those courting a chance to sit closely together while examining the pictures.

Today the interest in old albums is high, both for the value of the book and the photos inside. Some persons, such as I, prefer to leave the original pictures inside and thereby acquire "instant anceestors." Once in a while a valuable picture such as an identifiable Civil War or political personage is discovered. But most are of friends and family, and strangely enough, few are identified with names and dates. If you should buy an album, it might be wise to look for identification on the pictures, for they could be of interest to a local historical society. Sometimes the photographer's studio name printed on the bottom will help. Mine is from Wisconsin, and the photographer named on most of the prints is George Gorord of Mondovi.

Many have just the first names of the subject written on the reverse. Evidently people believed they would never be forgotten, and would have been appalled at the idea of ending up in an antique shop. The faces seldom show a smile — evidently having one's picture taken was serious business. One exception is a group of young blades reclining in various positions of indolence under a tree, holding their straw hats and bottles which I doubt contained soda pop. This outside view is unusual, for most are taken by photographers in a studio, showing background objects such as columns, elaborate wicker chairs and fernery.

MANY PERSONS might prefer to remove the original photos and use the books for their own family's pictures. In connection with this, I read somewhere that if you wish your snapshots to "keep" for posterity, take some in black and white film. The colored film, the article said, will eventually fade, and will not last like the still clear pictures in the old albums.

I think I'll just keep my unknown friends in their place, for visitors enjoy looking at them — so typical and symbolic of prim and proper Victorian ways.

Prices for such albums might run from $15 or $20 for simpler types to as high as $50 or $75 for elaborate models. Condition is important.

(If you wish to increase your letter writing by five per cent, write me with your queries, and I will answer, if you include a SASE. Enclose a black and white picture of your antique, if you can, and give me permission to use it. The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Only surgery would correct groin hernia

I am a woman, age 54, and several years ago I found that I had a hernia in my groin. Since it wasn't paintful, the doctor did not operate. The hernia disappeared. When my stomach started sticking out, I did leg raising exercises. The hernia returned. I stopped the exercises and the hernia again disappeared.

When I asked my doctor for exercises to flatten my abdomen, he just said any exercise that doesn't strain that area. I don't think I am overweight as I am 5-feet-6 and weigh 135 pounds. Are there any exercises I can do that won't cause the hernia to return?

A hernia in the groin region is caused by a defect, tearing or rupture of muscle and tendon tissues. This allows a loop of intestine to slide out of the abdominal cavity through the muscular wall and become visible under the skin.

You noticed the hernia because of the loop of bowel that slips in and out. However, if the loop of bowel is contained within the abdominal cavity, the defect in the muscle and tendon area is still present.

When you are lying on your back and do leg lifting type exercises, you create pressure within the abdominal cavity. This squeezing type pressure tends to push the loop of bowel out through the hole in the muscular wall. Frankly there is practically no exercise you can do to strengthen your abdominal muscles that won't create some pressure on the abdominal contents. The best I can suggest is voluntary contraction and relaxation of your abdominal muscles. And in order to prevent the hernia from appearing, it would probably be best to do these lying down.

Anyting that increases the pressure inside your abdominal cavity will tend to cause the loop of the bowel to slip out. Therefore if you do have any extra fat that you can lose it would be helpful. There is usually about as much fat inside the abdominal cavity as there is outside underneath the skin.

FOR INFORMATION on controlling the abdomen send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding The Big Middle. Send a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019.

A hernia doesn't come and go. It stays. The only way it can really be corrected is by surgery. The torn or stretched muscles and ligaments have to be repaired.

About the only exception to this I can make is the problem of herniation of a small amount of the stomach through the hole in the diaphragm called the hiatal hernia. These occur frequently in women during pregnancy because of increased abdominal pressure. Once the abdominal pressure is decreased, in many women the hiatal hernia will disappear. However, women are particularly prone to hiatal hernia in middle and later life and previous childbearing is probably a major factor in this disproportion between men and women in the frequency of hiatal hernia.

If you want to be failry active, I would seriously consider having a repair of your hernia. After all the condition will not correct itself and any requirement for surgery that might arise later will be increasingly difficult as you get older. If you were to have it done now and then make a good recovery, it would be easier for you to regain your level of physical fitness and maintain it.

Washing soda, not baking, for drains

Once a misconception takes hold, it's astonishing how it grows. Several times over the past few years we've reported on experiences keeping kitchen and shower drains clear with the regular use of washing soda — which is a caustic substance. Yet many have the impression that the references have been to baking soda and letters come constantly asking how much baking soda is necessary to keep drains open. Baking soda is a fabulous product and this column has been such a strong advocate that I've been kidded often about it. But baking soda is not for keeping drains open. A regular treatment of one-half cup of washing soda, followed by hot water, once a week, is all that's necessary to keep most drains clean and open.

Dear Dorothy: I'm puzzled. Why, with prices so astronomical on butter, would people choose Grade B? When you're in that stratosphere, the price difference can't be that great.—Melissa Greenbury

It has nothing to do with quality. Grade B butter generally is made from selected sour cream. Some like the slightly acidy flavor.

Dear Dorothy: It's a particularly good practice at Christmas time, but it's a smart idea at all times, to save all price tags and sales slips and put them in one big envelope. Then if exchanges have to be made, you have all the slips right within reach.—Ruby Cocanougher

An excellent tip. Thank you, Ruby.

Dear Dorothy: For the first time since I've been keeping house, I found ants all over the kitchen counter. With children around, I was hesitant to use an insecticide. My good neighbor came to the rescue. She told me to put powdered cloves around. The ants left immediately and have stayed away.—Jamie Hook

Dear Dorothy: This may seem like a strange question, but do you know anything about plantar warts? I've had a stinging sensation on the sole of my foot and it hurts to step down. A neighbor says it's probably a plantar wart, but I can't find a mention of such a thing in several medical books I've checked.—Mrs. Lindsey Moreland

Go to a dermatologist (skin doctor). He'll give you a lotion or salve to apply daily. If you treat it soon enough, it will disappear. Plantar warts are not like the normal kind which erupt outwards. The plantars are confined to the ball of the foot and grow inwards. They can grow serious and require an operation. Call the doctor now.

Dear Dorothy: Noticed a reader asking for a certain fudge recipe. Wonder if everyone knows that making candy can be affected by the weather — the humidity, that is.—Eunice Garrison popular," he said. "And sofas with huge ottomans, which can be used for storage as well as foot rests."

Good point. Reminds me that the outcome of a meringue is also dependent on the humidity.

He said his firm has dropped its Mediterranean, Spanish-style furniture lines in favor of contemporary and colonial designs.

NAT SILVERMAN, a spokesman for Chicago's Merchandise Mart, agreed: "One major giant casegood line, which you would normally expect to show Mediterranean and that sort of thing, brought out what they say is the largest selection of contemporary designs in their history at the January market."

Don Gott of the Fine Hardwoods-American Walnut Associaton said the Bicentennial influence is growing.

"For the past 18 months, young people want only the genuine, and as much Americana, as they can obtain. (Colonial styles) have taken over 30 per cent of the market, and that awful Bronx Mediterranean has finally been relegated to where it belongs."

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Only surgery would correct groin hernia

I am a woman, age 54, and several years ago I found that I had a hernia in my groin. Since it wasn't paintful, the doctor did not operate. The hernia disappeared. When my stomach started sticking out, I did leg raising exercises. The hernia returned. I stopped the exercises and the hernia again disappeared.

When I asked my doctor for exercises to flatten my abdomen, he just said any exercise that doesn't strain that area. I don't think I am overweight as I am 5-feet-6 and weigh 135 pounds. Are there any exercises I can do that won't cause the hernia to return?

A hernia in the groin region is caused by a defect, tearing or rupture of muscle and tendon tissues. This allows a loop of intestine to slide out of the abdominal cavity through the muscular wall and become visible under the skin.

You noticed the hernia because of the loop of bowel that slips in and out. However, if the loop of bowel is contained within the abdominal cavity, the defect in the muscle and tendon area is still present.

When you are lying on your back and do leg lifting type exercises, you create pressure within the abdominal cavity. This squeezing type pressure tends to push the loop of bowel out through the hole in the muscular wall. Frankly there is practically no exercise you can do to strengthen your abdominal muscles that won't create some pressure on the abdominal contents. The best I can suggest is voluntary contraction and relaxation of your abdominal muscles. And in order to prevent the hernia from appearing, it would probably be best to do these lying down.

Anyting that increases the pressure inside your abdominal cavity will tend to cause the loop of the bowel to slip out. Therefore if you do have any extra fat that you can lose it would be helpful. There is usually about as much fat inside the abdominal cavity as there is outside underneath the skin.

FOR INFORMATION on controlling the abdomen send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 3-7, Girth Control: Avoiding The Big Middle. Send a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019.

A hernia doesn't come and go. It stays. The only way it can really be corrected is by surgery. The torn or stretched muscles and ligaments have to be repaired.

About the only exception to this I can make is the problem of herniation of a small amount of the stomach through the hole in the diaphragm called the hiatal hernia. These occur frequently in women during pregnancy because of increased abdominal pressure. Once the abdominal pressure is decreased, in many women the hiatal hernia will disappear. However, women are particularly prone to hiatal hernia in middle and later life and previous childbearing is probably a major factor in this disproportion between men and women in the frequency of hiatal hernia.

If you want to be failry active, I would seriously consider having a repair of your hernia. After all the condition will not correct itself and any requirement for surgery that might arise later will be increasingly difficult as you get older. If you were to have it done now and then make a good recovery, it would be easier for you to regain your level of physical fitness and maintain it.

Washing soda, not baking, for drains

Once a misconception takes hold, it's astonishing how it grows. Several times over the past few years we've reported on experiences keeping kitchen and shower drains clear with the regular use of washing soda — which is a caustic substance. Yet many have the impression that the references have been to baking soda and letters come constantly asking how much baking soda is necessary to keep drains open. Baking soda is a fabulous product and this column has been such a strong advocate that I've been kidded often about it. But baking soda is not for keeping drains open. A regular treatment of one-half cup of washing soda, followed by hot water, once a week, is all that's necessary to keep most drains clean and open.

Dear Dorothy: I'm puzzled. Why, with prices so astronomical on butter, would people choose Grade B? When you're in that stratosphere, the price difference can't be that great.—Melissa Greenbury

It has nothing to do with quality. Grade B butter generally is made from selected sour cream. Some like the slightly acidy flavor.

Dear Dorothy: It's a particularly good practice at Christmas time, but it's a smart idea at all times, to save all price tags and sales slips and put them in one big envelope. Then if exchanges have to be made, you have all the slips right within reach.—Ruby Cocanougher

The way we see it

Drug fighters need support

The increase in the use of hard drugs by Northwest suburban drug users once again points up the need to keep the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) operating.

There are reports the group may disband early next year because of insufficient funding. If this happens, the Chicago suburban area virtually will be defenseless against drug traffic since most local police departments are not equipped to handle such cases.

It was MEG that discovered the recent increase in hard drugs in the Northwest suburbs. Its research shows cocaine has become the "prestigious" drug of area high schools — so "prestigious" that users in the schools wear "coke spoons" for preparing it around their necks.

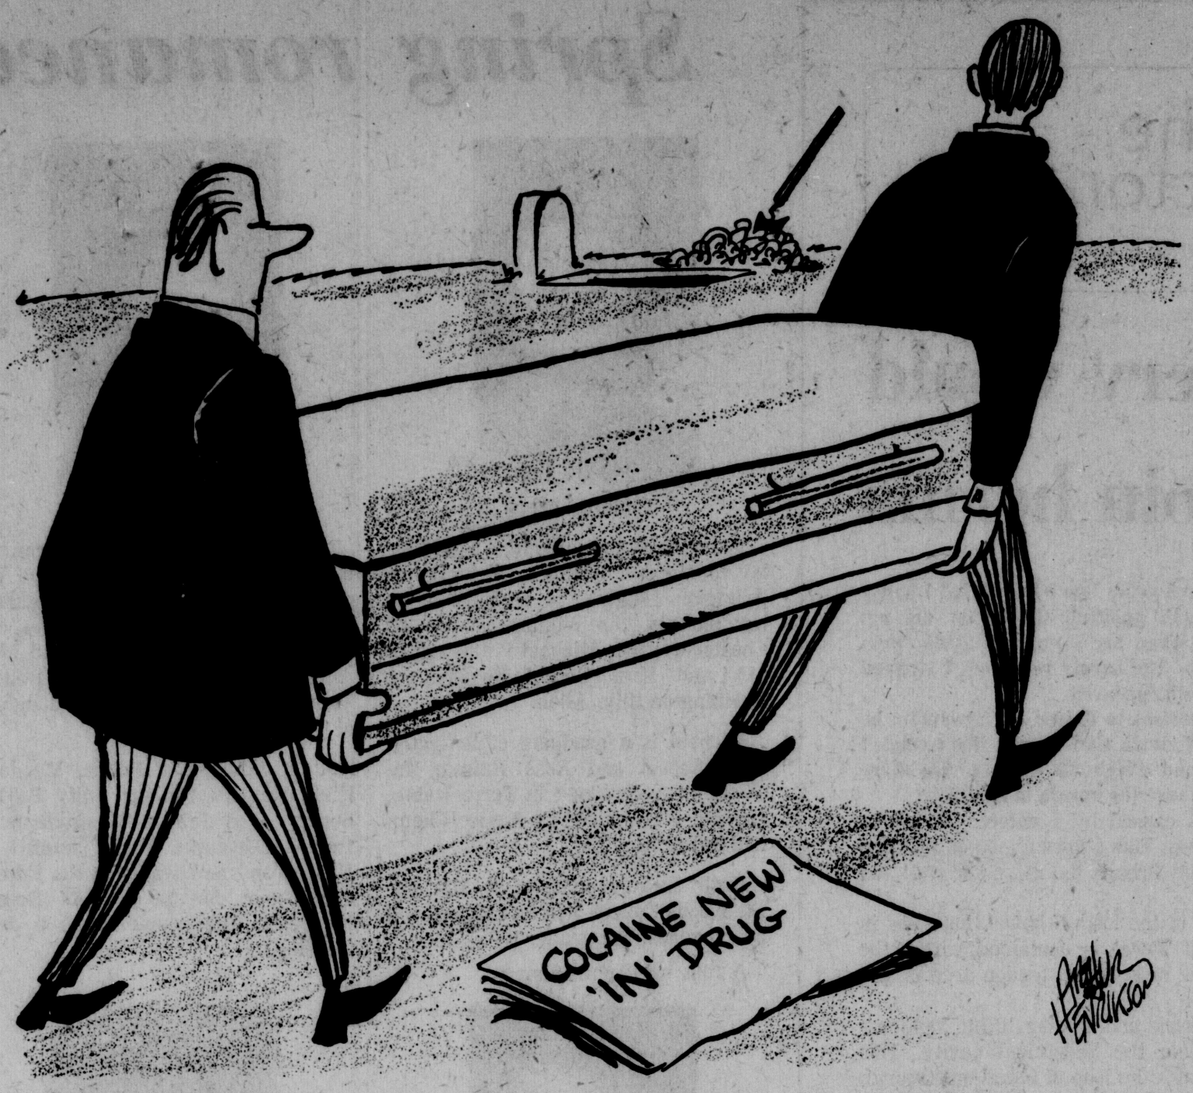
It's time these students and all other users took heed of the warnings about drugs. Cocaine is not a harmless drug. Experts know the effects of such a drug on a user.

These drugs are not in the same category as marijuana and common pills. These are killers.

We encourage parents of high school students, who openly display the use of drugs, to try to explain the effects of these drugs on their children.

We also call on users to reevaluate the drug game before becoming the latest statistic of drug-related deaths.

We strongly support MEG and its sister agencies in their continued fight to curb drug traffic in the suburbs, and urge local and county officials to find the necessary funds to keep this group of dedicated law officers working.



Stamp custom fading?

An end to a bit of Americana will come March 31 when the Sperry and Hutchinson Stamp Co. will stop redeeming its Green Stamps in the Northwest suburbs.

The little Green Stamp with the red S&H on it quickly is becoming a thing of the past in the Chicago area. In past years people would gear their spending habits to where the green stamps were given in exchange.

Today the Green Stamp seems as rare as the crew cut.

For those who still have them in the dresser drawer, a shoe box or under the silverware tray in the kitchen, you've got until March 31 to redeem them in the Northwest suburban area.

As of April 1, a new redemption center will open in Elmwood Park, and those with stamps may travel there for their gifts.

Somehow, however, it won't be the same as needing two pages for that new football, iron or toaster and then running down to the local redemption center.

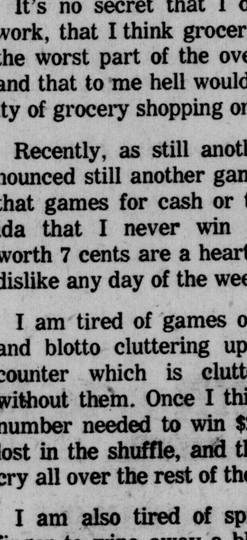
Games of chance leave her cold—and wishful



Dorothy Meyer

It's no secret that I dislike housework, that I think grocery shopping is the worst part of the over-all process and that to me hell would be an eternity of grocery shopping on a Saturday.

Recently, as still another store announced still another game, I realized that games for cash or trips to Florida that I never win and coupons worth 7 cents are a hearty part of my dislike any day of the week.

I am tired of games of bingo, lotto and blotto cluttering up my kitchen counter which is cluttered enough without them. Once I think I had the number needed to win $20, but it got lost in the shuffle, and that made me cry all over the rest of the numbers.

I am also tired of spitting on my finger to wipe away a black dot or a gold dot or a green dot to see what's under it. (Under the dot, I mean — I know what's under my finger. Under my finger is a smeary black or green or gold mess.)

AND I AM TIRED of having so many discount tokens in my purse that I'm beginning to think they're money but nobody else does when I try to pay my bills with them.

If it wasn't for the fact the cat would starve to death I would vow to quit grocery shopping altogether and eat out all the time.

In a declaration of independence I am going to quit saving coupons worth seven cents.

Coupons worth 7 cents are why my purse is so heavy, but if I clean out my purse the coupons are on the window sill in the kitchen when I'm in the store and could use them.

COUPONS WORTH more than 7 cents usually have expiration dates on them, and I'm why the expression, "too little, too late" was invented. Most of the rest of the worthwhile coupons are for instant coffee but I never use them because there's always another one in the jar. Since they are worth from 25 cents to 60 cents I can only conclude that the coffee is over-priced in the first place.

I know a lot of women who have fun with the games and save money with the tokens and the coupons. I even know a few who have won something.

I wish I was one of them.

Ford stands become clear

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With five primary victories and one defeat behind him, President Ford's position on the campaign issues is coming through loud and clear.

And as he moves along toward the Republican National nominating convention in Kansas City Aug. 16, the nation is becoming well informed on his stands.

The President takes second place to no candidate in "running against Washington." "Big government" has long been a favorite target of Ford and he believes that the country is fed up with it.

He rarely makes a campaign speech that does not include this warning:

"WE SHOULD never forget that any government big enough to give us everything we want is a government big enough to take from us everything we have."

The federal bureaucracy is a particular target. "There are some people in Washington and I guess around the country, a few, who think that the way to do things better is to have the federal bureaucracy grow and grow; put more people on the federal payroll to harass you on a day-by-day basis," Ford told North Carolina supporters last week.

The President also has been blessed with "good news" from the Bureau of Labor Statistics nearly every weekend as he sets out on his campaign, and so armed he feels he can boast.

"Nineteen months ago when I became your President, we were going through inflation at 12 to 14 per cent per year," he tells voters. "We were on the brink of the worst recession in the last 40 years of this country. We were about to see unemployment soar and employment drop off precipitously."

But by disdaining "quick fixes" Ford goes on to say that inflation has been cut in half and the unemployment rate is down to around 7.5 — too high but going down.

Some of Ford's other stands:

Busing — He is against achieving what he terms "racial balance" by that method and criticizes federal court orders which call for busing; says it should be a last resort, but always adds the law should be obeyed.

ABORTION — Prefers the matter be left to the states and unlike his wife, he is against unlimited legalized abortion.

Gun control — Tells campaign audiences, "There are some people in Washington, not myself, some of the so-called liberals, who want to make every person who is a lawful owner of a gun register the gun or register the gun owner. I am against it, period.

Social security — Favors raising the taxes to bolster the shaky social security trust fund. "Now there are some people who want to destroy the Social Security system," Ford has said in aiming fire at rival Ronald Reagan. "I disagree. We want to make it stronger. We want to make it certain."

Defense — Puts it this way: "Let me tell you — and I say it very firmly and very strongly — the United States of America today is second to none in military capability and we are going to stay there."

Detente — Says he has "dropped the word" but not the foreign policy of seeking negotiation with Russia and China — negotiating "peace through strength." He stresses he is against returning to the era of "cold war" confrontation.

SALT II — Favors it but says he does not know when or if an agreement will be reached with Russia to limit strategic offensive nuclear arms.

CHINA — The United States, he says, is continuing to normalize relations with the mainland and to reduce American troops based in Taiwan.

Cuba — Has returned to a hard line against any possibility of resuming diplomatic relations now or in future because of the Cuban intervention in the Angolan civil war.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — Says he can stay in the Cabinet "as long as he wants to" and that he has asked him to do so.

Branch cost $26,000

In the March 15 Hoffman Estates/Schaumburg Herald, there was an article on Page 5 about the library's budget. The $75,000 increase in the budget for next year was stated to be necessary because of the new branch library. This is just not true. Only $26,000 of the $75,000 is being budgeted for the branch. The other $49,000 is needed to meet personnel raises and rising costs for books and other services.

Argentina: democracy vs demogoguery

by MARTIN McREYNOLDS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Why has democracy failed again in Argentina, a country where the crops flourish but self-government withers and dies?

The immediate explanation is that the Peronists who returned to power in 1973 planted the wrong seeds.

The past three years provide a classic illustration of the difference between democracy and demagoguery.

Argentina, despite the blessings of nature and of an industrious, well-educated citizenry, has had only brief periods of orderly democratic government during the past 50 years.

Twice in 1973, voters showed overwhelmingly that they wanted a Peronist government after seven years of uninspired military rule.

JUAN D. PERON, the 77-year-old expresident who had spent 18 years in exile after a 1955 military coup ousted him, returned to office in triumph.

Peron's doctrine is a vague mixture of socialism and nationalism — some of his early ideas were shaped by the fascism of Italian dictator Benito Mussolini.

Peron had brutally suppressed opposition during his earlier (1946-1955) period in power, alienated the Catholic Church and severely disrupted the once-prosperous Argentine economy.

But he also had given the country's working class a sense of dignity, a string of very real wage benefits and political power.

HE HAD MELLOWED in exile and on return spoke constantly of the need for unity, hard work and an end to strife among Argentines.

At the same time, he laid the foundations of the political and economic disaster that was to follow by raising expectations he could not fulfill.

Young leftist guerrillas he had encouraged from exile were pushed out of the Peronist movement in favor of conservative union leaders.

A violent struggle ensued with both sides using bombs and bullets.

Peronist doctrine required redistribution of wealth to the working class, and Peron presided over a price freeze accompanied by a general wage increase.

The result was a buying spree followed by severe distortion of the economic process. With profit margins eliminated, production slowed, goods became scarce and the black market thrived.

The stage was set for a runaway inflation that virtually destroyed the value of the Argentine peso.

Mrs. Peron, elected as her husband's vice president, took over the government on his death.

Her leadership proved capricious and vacillating.

She declared a state of siege suspending constitutional guarantees without consulting congress.

Hundreds of leftist suspects were jailed without charge and held without trial. Newspapers and magazines critical of the government were shut down.

Argentines chafed under the atmosphere of fear and the rumors of corruption. But it was the economic debacle that finally brought about Wednesday's miitary coup that ended what had been a poor imitation of the democratic process.

The way we see it

Drug fighters need support

The increase in the use of hard drugs by Northwest suburban drug users once again points up the need to keep the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) operating.

There are reports the group may disband early next year because of insufficient funding. If this happens, the Chicago suburban area virtually will be defenseless against drug traffic since most local police departments are not equipped to handle such cases.

It was MEG that discovered the recent increase in hard drugs in the Northwest suburbs. Its research shows cocaine has become the "prestigious" drug of area high schools — so "prestigious" that users in the schools wear "coke spoons" for preparing it around their necks.

It's time these students and all other users took heed of the warnings about drugs. Cocaine is not a harmless drug. Experts know the effects of such a drug on a user.

These drugs are not in the same category as marijuana and common pills. These are killers.

We encourage parents of high school students, who openly display the use of drugs, to try to explain the effects of these drugs on their children.

We also call on users to reevaluate the drug game before becoming the latest statistic of drug-related deaths.

We strongly support MEG and its sister agencies in their continued fight to curb drug traffic in the suburbs, and urge local and county officials to find the necessary funds to keep this group of dedicated law officers working.

Stamp custom fading?

An end to a bit of Americana will come March 31 when the Sperry and Hutchinson Stamp Co. will stop redeeming its Green Stamps in the Northwest suburbs.

The little Green Stamp with the red S&H on it quickly is becoming a thing of the past in the Chicago area. In past years people would gear their spending habits to where the green stamps were given in exchange.

Today the Green Stamp seems as rare as the crew cut.

For those who still have them in the dresser drawer, a shoe box or under the silverware tray in the kitchen, you've got until March 31 to redeem them in the Northwest suburban area.

As of April 1, a new redemption center will open in Elmwood Park, and those with stamps may travel there for their gifts.

Somehow, however, it won't be the same as needing two pages for that new football, iron or toaster and then running down to the local redemption center.

Games of chance leave her cold—and wishful

It's no secret that I dislike housework, that I think grocery shopping is the worst part of the over-all process and that to me hell would be an eternity of grocery shopping on a Saturday.

Recently, as still another store announced still another game, I realized that games for cash or trips to Florida that I never win and coupons worth 7 cents are a hearty part of my dislike any day of the week.

I am tired of games of bingo, lotto and blotto cluttering up my kitchen counter which is cluttered enough without them. Once I think I had the number needed to win $20, but it got lost in the shuffle, and that made me cry all over the rest of the numbers.

I am also tired of spitting on my finger to wipe away a black dot or a gold dot or a green dot to see what's under it. (Under the dot, I mean — I know what's under my finger. Under my finger is a smeary black or green or gold mess.)

Dorothy Meyer

AND I AM TIRED of having so many discount tokens in my purse that I'm beginning to think they're money but nobody else does when I try to pay my bills with them.

If it wasn't for the fact the cat would starve to death I would vow to quit grocery shopping altogether and eat out all the time.

In a declaration of independence I am going to quit saving coupons worth seven cents.

Coupons worth 7 cents are why my purse is so heavy, but if I clean out my purse the coupons are on the window sill in the kitchen when I'm in the store and could use them.

COUPONS WORTH more than 7 cents usually have expiration dates on them, and I'm why the expression, "too little, too late" was invented. Most of the rest of the worthwhile coupons are for instant coffee but I never use them because there's always another one in the jar. Since they are worth from 25 cents to 60 cents I can only conclude that the coffee is over-priced in the first place.

I know a lot of women who have fun with the games and save money with the tokens and the coupons. I even know a few who have won something.

I wish I was one of them.

Branch cost $26,000

In the March 15 Hoffman Estates/Schaumburg Herald, there was an article on Page 5 about the library's budget. The $75,000 increase in the budget for next year was stated to be necessary because of the new branch library. This is just not true. Only $26,000 of the $75,000 is being budgeted for the branch. The other $49,000 is needed to meet personnel raises and rising costs for books and other services.

Ford stands become clear

UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With five primary victories and one defeat behind him, President Ford's position on the campaign issues is coming through loud and clear.

And as he moves along toward the Republican National nominating convention in Kansas City Aug. 16, the nation is becoming well informed on his stands.

The President takes second place to no candidate in "running against Washington." "Big government" has long been a favorite target of Ford and he believes that the country is fed up with it.

He rarely makes a campaign speech that does not include this warning:

"WE SHOULD never forget that any government big enough to give us everything we want is a government big enough to take from us everything we have."

The federal bureaucracy is a particular target. "There are some people in Washington and I guess around the country, a few, who think that the way to do things better is to have the federal bureaucracy grow and grow; put more people on the federal payroll to harass you on a day-by-day basis," Ford told North Carolina supporters last week.

The President also has been blessed with "good news" from the Bureau of Labor Statistics nearly every weekend as he sets out on his campaign, and so armed he feels he can boast.

"Nineteen months ago when I became your President, we were going through inflation at 12 to 14 per cent per year," he tells voters. "We were on the brink of the worst recession in the last 40 years of this country. We were about to see unemployment soar and employment drop off precipitously."

But by disdaining "quick fixes" Ford goes on to say that inflation has been cut in half and the unemployment rate is down to around 7.5 — too high but going down.

Some of Ford's other stands:

Busing — He is against achieving what he terms "racial balance" by that method and criticizes federal court orders which call for busing; says it should be a last resort, but always adds the law should be obeyed.

ABORTION — Prefers the matter be left to the states and unlike his wife, he is against unlimited legalized abortion.

Gun control — Tells campaign audiences, "There are some people in Washington, not myself, some of the so-called liberals, who want to make every person who is a lawful owner of a gun register the gun or register the gun owner. I am against it, period.

Social security — Favors raising the taxes to bolster the shaky social security trust fund. "Now there are some people who want to destroy the Social Security system," Ford has said in aiming fire at rival Ronald Reagan. "I disagree. We want to make it stronger. We want to make it certain."

Defense — Puts it this way: "Let me tell you — and I say it very firmly and very strongly — the United States of America today is second to none in military capability and we are going to stay there."

Detente — Says he has "dropped the word" but not the foreign policy of seeking negotiation with Russia and China — negotiating "peace through strength." He stresses he is against returning to the era of "cold war" confrontation.

SALT II — Favors it but says he does not know when or if an agreement will be reached with Russia to limit strategic offensive nuclear arms.

CHINA — The United States, he says, is continuing to normalize relations with the mainland and to reduce American troops based in Taiwan.

Cuba — Has returned to a hard line against any possibility of resuming diplomatic relations now or in future because of the Cuban intervention in the Angolan civil war.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — Says he can stay in the Cabinet "as long as he wants to" and that he has asked him to do so.

Argentina: democracy vs demogoguery

by MARTIN McREYNOLDS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Why has democracy failed again in Argentina, a country where the crops flourish but self-government withers and dies?

The immediate explanation is that the Peronists who returned to power in 1973 planted the wrong seeds.

The past three years provide a classic illustration of the difference between democracy and demagoguery.

Argentina, despite the blessings of nature and of an industrious, well-educated citizenry, has had only brief periods of orderly democratic government during the past 50 years.

Dow gains 1.33 points in slow Friday trading

NEW YORK (UPI — Faced with favorable economic news along with an uncertain international picture, many investors retreated to the sidelines Friday and prices finished barely higher in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 7.08-point loser Thursday, added 1.33 points to 1,003.46. It had been ahead more than four points before profit taking trimmed it. Some analysts were encouraged the average stayed above the 1,000 level, however.

For the week, the blue-chip average gained 23.61 points. That put the Dow 151.05 points ahead for the year to date — one of the reasons it has been under profit taking pressures.

Other averages did little better. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index finished unchanged at 102.85. The NYSE common stock index gained 0.03 to 54.87 and the average price of an NYSE common share one cent.

MARKET BREADTH figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty. Of the 1,846 issues crossing the tape, 765 advanced, 627 declined and 454 remained unchanged.

Volume totaled 18,510,000 shares, down from the 22,510,000 traded Thursday. It was the third slowest day of the year. Analysts said the lack of trading indicated many investors were protecting gains made in the new year rally and particularly this week.

A University of Michigan Survey Research Center report that said consumer confidence improved sharply between November and February sparked some early buying. The survey indicated a brighter consumer outlook for spring and summer.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported the United States had a $140.8 million deficit in February, the second consecutive monthly deficit, and February's industrial output rose 0.5 per cent instead of the 0.6 per cent originally reported.

SOME INVESTORS were encouraged the Federal Reserve Board late Thursday reported the nation's money supply fell $500 million in the latest reporting week. Wall Street has not been able to figure out recent Fed policy.

Sec. of State Henry Kissinger provided some encouragement by telling the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the administration's review of contingencies regarding Cuban military operations were precautionary, not critical. But there were concerns about continued fighting in Lebanon.

Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by one cent. Volume totaled 3,140,000 shares, compared with 3,000,000 traded Thursday.

Cable crash kills Palos Park woman

Karen Togtman, 19, Palos Park, was one of three killed Friday morning when a cable car crashed to the ground in Vail, Colo., the Eagle County Coroner's office said late Friday.

Walker asks U.S. help

Gov. Daniel Walker Friday asked President Ford to reverse a federal agency's decision not to give federal disaster aid to four tornado-damaged counties in northeastern Illinois.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration Thursday turned down Walker's request that the counties of Cook, DuPage, Kendall and Kankakee be declared disaster areas from the March 12 tornado, which caused an estimated $16.1 million in property damage.

In a telegram to Ford, Walker said, "You personally witnessed the destruction caused by those tornadoes in the Chicago area while you were there on a campaign tour. Surely the financial troubles that were to follow the tornadoes could not have escaped you."

Without the federal disaster designation, Walker said, individual homeowners will not be eligible for up to $5,000 in grants and communities will be ineligible for reimbursements for repair and clearing of public property.

Illinois briefs

Ma Bell asks rate hike

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. asked the Illinois Commerce Commission Friday for additional rate hikes, this time affecting special service lines provided to business customers including newspapers and radio stations.

The changes, Bell said, would apply to intrastate lines only and would yield an estimated $15.5 million a year in additional revenue. They would affect about 100,000 business customers.

The charges would result in one-time higher charges for installation and rearrangement of special lines and higher monthly charges for services such as alarm circuits, private voice and data communications circuits, teletypewriter circuits used by newspapers, radio stations and other businesses, answering service facilities, and Telpak "bulk rate" circuit packages.

Businesses seek help

Downstate and Chicago-area businessmen are distressed with the Illinois business climate, a survey released by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce reported Friday.

A total of 1,083 persons responded to the poll conducted by Central Surveys Inc., Shenandoah, Iowa. Lester Brann, state president, said the survey contained clear "danger signals" and scheduled a meeting May 7 in Chicago of government, business and labor leaders to formulate a plan of action.

"Government-mandated costs of doing business are holding down business expansion in Illinois and actually driving jobs to other states," Brann said. "Unless immediate action is taken to reverse this unhealthy trend, Illinois will lose its traditional position as a major industrial state and economic power house."

NCAA showdowns today in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — UCLA, which has come between so many teams and their dreams of a national championship, now stands in the path of undefeated and topranked Indiana.

The fiery Hoosiers, who have won 61 of their 62 games during the past two seasons, meet the cool, perennial champion Bruins in today's second NCAA semifinal. In the opening game at 1:15 p.m. (Channel 5) unbeaten Rutgers plays Big Ten runnerup Michigan.

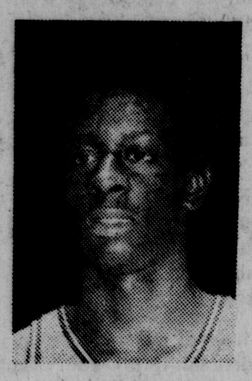
Indiana, 30-0 this season, clearly has had the toughest route to the NCAA finals as the Hoosiers have had to meet and beat St. John's, Alabama and Marquette.

The Hoosiers' mid-east regional final against second ranked Marquette was being touted prior to the game as the actual national championship.

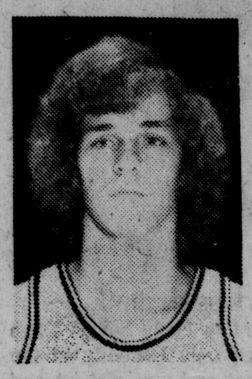
But that was forgetting UCLA.

Last season, Indiana also was conceded to be the best in the nation, but UCLA won the NCAA championship. The Bruins have won 10 of the last 12 NCAA titles and 47 of their last 48 tournament games.

In style, the Hoosiers and the Bruins offer a sharp contrast. Coach



Phil Hubbard



Tom Bergen

Scott May

Bobby Knight's Hoosiers play with a fanatical intensity, ready to do anything to win.

Conversely, UCLA plays with an outward nonchalance born through the years from a sense of ruling college basketball by divine right.

In personnel, however, the Hoosiers and the Bruins are similar. Scott May and Kent Benson form the nucleus of the Indiana team, while Richard Washington and Marques Johnson are the vital cogs in the UCLA offense. May, Benson and Washington are All-Americans. Johnson plays like one sometimes and, fortunately for the Bruins, that is usually during the big game.

It is generally agreed each team's weakest point is guard.

Quinn Buckner and Bob Wilkerson play outstanding defense for the Hoosiers, but neither has the outside shot to overcome a zone defense so that task is left to May.

Andre McCarter, almost a folk hero in his high school days in Philadelphia, is the Bruins' ball handler, while Ricky Townsend has won coach Gene Bartow's long search for a second guard.

In the season opener for each team, Indiana clobbered the Bruins, 84-64. Since then, the big change in the UCLA lineup is freshman Dave Greenwood's winning the starting center position from Ralph Drollinger.

UCLA entered the game with a 26-4 record and the last time a team won the national championship with as many as four losses was in 1959, when California was 25-4.

Indiana is seeking to become the fourth school to win the NCAA crown with undefeated records. San Francisco, North Carolina and UCLA have performed the feat, with the Bruins doing it four times.

Rutgers, 31-0, also has aspirations toward joining that select circle. The Scarlet Knights are a bit short on national respect because their schedule does not warrant it. But they can run. And so can Michigan.

Rutgers relies on a "snatch-and-grab" defense for its fast-break layoffs.

Guards Ed Jordan and Mike Dabney are the chief architects of this style, with Dabney averaging 19 points and Jordan 14.

Phil Sellers, Rutgers' all-time leading scorer has averaged 19 points this season, while devoting considerably more effort to defense than in the past.

Michigan guard Rickey Green is reputed to be even faster and quicker than anyone on Rutgers. He has averaged 20 points a game in leading Michigan to a 24-6 record. The 1958 Kentucky Wildcats are the only team to win the NCAA championship with as many as six losses.

The Wolverines of coach Johnny Orr feature a small front line with 6-7 center Phil Hubbard, 6-6 forward Johnny Robinson and 6-2 forward Wayman Britt, but Rutgers is not any taller up front. Jim Bailey, a 6-8 freshman, is the Scarlet Knight's starting center and 6-6 Hollis Copeland joins the 6-5 Sellers at forward.

In addition, and this could be a big factor, Michigan's bench has produced wins and that bench includes Prospect High School product Tom Bergen. Bergen, who backs up Hubbard, the sensational freshman, has rescued the club more than once with his sharp shooting.

Hubbard showed a nagging propensity for fouls during stretches in the season but Orr hasn't hesitated to go to Bergen, a 6-9 transfer from the University of Utah.

New Trier's track squad tops Relays

by ART MUGALIAN

New Trier East racked up three firsts and a life-saving total of five second-place finishes to easily outrun the rest of the 16-team field at Friday night's Wildcat Relays track meet at Wheeling High School.

While the Indians two-mile relay and 12-lap relay teams claimed big 10-point first-place bonanzas and sprinter Mitch Hoffman took first in the 440-dash (:5.45) and second in the 50, it was the work of Highland Park's Steve Roth that merited the honor of Most Valuable Athlete.

Roth personally accounted for 15 of his team's 20 points by winning the long jump (20-5½), placing second in the triple jump (41-9¾), and finishing third in the finals of the 50-yard low hurdles in :06.4.

Highland Park ended up in a three-way tie for ninth place, far behind New Trier (61) and second-place Zion-Benton (39). Crown was third (36) and Glenbrook North and Glenbard North tied for fourth with 32.

Wheeling finished next to last with just five points, all of them scored by versatile Mark Larson, who was fourth in the 440 (:55.3) and fifth in the long jump (19-2½).

The Wildcats' girls four-lap relay team made up for the boys' showing by winning the first-place trophy in that special event. Bonnie Buenzow, Sandy Rainey, Gail Miloch, and Kathy Wachter coasted to victory in a record-establishing time of 1:23.0.

But the big news of the night was made by the boys from New Trier. Triple jumper Jeff King started the scoring by capturing a third behind Roth and winner Bruce Burroughs of Z-B (42-9). King later took second behind teammate Hoffman in the 440, the last of five seconds New Trier got.

The others went to Sam Detmer in the two-mile (9:49), Joe Brennan in the high hurdles, Dave Waitley in the 880, and Hoffman in the 50.

Glenbrook North also grabbed three firsts, including wins for Ron Cohen in the high jump (6-3) and Kevin Shanahan in the 880 (2:04.9). The Spartans won the four-lap relay, too.

Glenbrook South eked out a pair of victories in the mile and the two-mile. Bill Chamberlain fought off the challenge of Detmer, a two-time winner here, to capture first place in the two-mile event in 9:42.9.

Much later in the evening, Chamberlain's teammate Steve Chaplin pulled off a mild upset by winning the mile in 4:36.8, running in the second of three heats. The winner in the third, and fastest heat, was Crown's Dave Lynn, whose time was 4:37.7.

Zion-Benton and Dundee each claimed a pair of firsts also. Zion's Brad Markobrad won the shot put event with a 53¼ effort to join teammate Burroughs in the winner's circle. Burroughs, just a junior, fell short of his 1975 effort when he won the Wildcat triple jump in a record 43-0.

Dundee's Wes Dillon held off three other sprinters, including Hoffman of New Trier, to win the 50-dash in :05.6 in a blanket finish. Dundee teammate Scott Schwarz won the pole vault in 13-2, but failed three times in his attempt to break the meet mark of 14-0.

Crown's Leroy Mikos won the high hurdles in :06.7 and was second in the lows as Joe Maxwell of Glenbard won (:06.2).

New Trier 61, Z-B 39, Crown 36, Glenbrook N. 32, Glenbard N. 32, Glenbrook S. 24, Niles North 20, Lake Park 20, Highland Park 20, Mundelein 17, Dundee 12, Libertyville 10, Deerfield 8, Fenton 8, Wheeling 5, Barrington 0.

Paddock to sponsor racquetball tournament

Eighteen trophies head the list of awards to be presented in the first Paddock Publications Racquetball Tournament of Champions June 5-6 with over 1,000 persons expected to complete.

"The event is another of the long list of our community interest activities," stated Robert Y. Paddock, Director of Tournaments for the suburban newspaper group.

"So many thousands of persons are interested in our bowling, golf and tennis tournaments, plus the Paddock Olympics, we believed we needed one more event to round out a full year program, and selected racquetball, one of the fastest growing sports in the northwest suburbs with nine club facilities available to our readers," stated Paddock.

Entry fee of $3.00 entitles the racquetball enthusiast to compete in a preliminary tournament at the club of his choice, and covers cost of court time in the finals June 5-6.

Each of the nine clubs within the area served by Paddock Publications and Paddock Circle newspapers will be selecting champions in nine divisions of competition with the champs then going on to the Finals.

Each preliminary winner will be awarded an official tournament tee shirt, with trophies given the top two contestants in each division of the Finals.

Facilities participating in the new endeavor are Arlington Indoor Tennis, Palatine; The Court House, Arlington Heights; Forest Grove Racquet Club, Palatine; Poplar Creek, Hoffman Estates; Woodfield Racquet Club, Schaumburg; Buehler YMCA, Palatine; The Court House, Schaumburg; Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines; and Right Tennis Club, Schaumburg.

Complete details are included in today's issue of Leisure. Official entry blanks are available at the nie particiblanks are available at the nine participating clubs, and at the four offices of the newspapers, 114 and 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights; 601 W. Golf Road, Mount Prospect; and 113 W. Rockland Road, Libertyville.

Three state champs head gym standouts

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Gymnastics is a sport of building. The best always peak at the right moment and this year's All - Mid-Suburban League team is no exception.

There were three individual state champions as well as sparkling team performances, all carefully timed to reach the closest to perfection when it counted the most.

ALL-AROUND

DANNY MUENZ

Danny Muenz of Hersey has succeeded his brother Kevin as the best gymnast in the MSL.

Muenz, who is a senior, was honored by the league coaches when they voted him the Gary Morava Award as the outstanding senior gymnast.

Muenz had a solid season, leading the Huskies to the MSL's North Division title and a second place finish in the conference meet.

During the season Danny made the Herald's Honor Roll six times as an all-arounder and 15 times in indlvidual events.

When the money was on the line, in the stages leading to the state tournament, Muenz was at his best. Despite a nagging injury, he took district and sectional all-around titles with averages of 8.06 and 8.29 respectively.

He matched his sectional score of 8.29 in the state finals to place third, leading the Huskies to the second place team trophy.

GENE CHRISTENSEN

Choosing between Muenz and the Elk Grove senior for the top gymnast in the league was a coin flip proposition.

Christensen outpointed Muenz in the MSL conference meet, taking that title with an 8.14 average and leading the Grens to the league championship.

Christensen matched Muenz with six Honor Roll appearances as an all-arounder and placed as an individual 18 times, more than any other gymnast.

Fighting the flu, Christensen won a district all-around title with a 7.94 average and was second in the sectional to state champion Craig Martin of Maine South.

Christensen closed out a fine high school career in the state finals with a fourth place finish, averaging 8.10 as the Grens took fourth place as a team.

FLOOR EXERCISE

DOUG ZAHOUR

Prospect's Doug Zahour glittered on the mats this year. He placed second behind Christensen in the conference meet with an 8.45 score and placed highly in the district and sectional with scores of 8.50 and 8.05 respectively.

The Knight senior placed on the Honor Roll twice as a free ex man and led once with an 8.6.

BOB BARUT

Another Hersey gymnast, Barut is the only double winner on the all-conference team.

Besides being a crack trampolinist, Barut took third in the conference meet in free ex with an 8.35 score and scored 8.40 in the district for a third place finish.

At the Rolling Meadows Sectional, Barut placed second with an 8.30 mark.

MIKE ILLINGWORTH

The Rolling Meadows junior won the floor ex event at the Hoffman Estates District with an 8.35 score and went on to score 8.20 in the sectional and take a third place medal.

An all-arounder for the Mustangs, he will be an importnat part of the Meadows program next season.

POMMEL HORSE

TIM CONNELLY

Elk Grove senior Tim Connelly was Mr. Smooth from the start this year and got better with each routine.

He grabbed the conference title with an 8.90 score after placing on the Honor Roll six times during the year.

He took a district title before finishing second in the sectional then threw the best score of the night during the state prelims.

The following night, under the glare of TV lights and a capacity crowd at Prospect High School, Connelly took the state championship with a score of 9.10.

Danny Muenz

DAVE SCHEIBLE

Prospect's curly haired Dave Scheible trailed only Connelly in the conference meet and won district and sectional titles with scores of 8.50 and 8.45 respectively.

A senior for the Knights, Scheible made the Honor Roll five times during the season.

DOUG SMIDL

The side horse man of the future, Fremd's classy junior hit his stride when it counted.

Smidl took third in the conference meet then wrapped up second place finishes in the district and sectional tournaments.

He had the seventh best score (8.15) in the state prelims then threw an 8.40 in the finals to tie for fifth in the state.

HORIZONTAL BAR

KEITH LISZEWSKI

Rolling Meadows' Keith Liszewski powered his way to a phenomenally successful year, placing on the Honor Roll four times during a consistent season.

He began a string of championships by winning the conference meet with an average of 8.70.

The Mustangs' senior then turned up the gas by winning a district title (8.95), a sectional title (9.00) and the state championship (9.00).

Tim Connelly

Doug Zahour

TOM BALLA

Elk Grove's Tom Balla was instrumental in the Grens' season, placing on the Honor Roll four times taking third in the conference with an 8.55 score and tying for first in the sectional with an 8.45.

He qualified for the state finals with an 8.45 and equaled that score in the championship around.

MARK WACLAWSKI

The second punch of Rolling Meadows' high bar team, Waclawski was just a dab of polish behind Liszewski all season.

Waclawski trailed only his teammate in the district (8.15) and then fired an 8.35 in the sectional tournament. He hit an 8.45 in the state prelims then totlaed 8.25 in the finals.

TRAMPOLINE

GLENN JOHNSON

Only a sophomore, Rolling Meadows' Glenn Johnson has an excellent future as a trampolinist.

He hit the Honor Roll three times and placed second in the conference meet with a score of 8.40. He won district and sectional titles then tied for sixth in the state prelims with a mark of 8:30.

BOB BARUT

Hersey's Bob Barut, besides being an all-conference performer in free ex, was the Huskies' trampoline expert.

He grabbed the conference championship with an 8.60 then ran into disaster in the sectionals when he went into the springs and fell to 7.30.

That mistake, attributed to a titled trampoline bed, cost him a shot at the state finals.

Eldon Miller lands Ohio State position

Western Michigan Coach Eldon Miller, 36, Friday was named head basketball coach at Ohio State and immediately stressed that the Buckeyes have the potential to be "No. 1 in the nation."

Miller guided the Broncos to a 25-3 record and the Mid-American Conference championship. He succeeds Fred Taylor, who resigned Feb. 5 after 18 seasons as Buckeye coach.

"The University has the potential to compete with any in the U.S.," said Miller at a news conference here. "What I am talking about is being No. 1 in the nation. The number of people we can get involved in our program is going to determine how fast we rise to the top.

"To be chosen to coach at Ohio State is one of the greatest honors I could have," said Miller. "Everyone here knows the basketball potential of Ohio State. It is my sincere desire to fulfill that potential. It should be the finest place in the country to go to school and play basketball."

Bulls fall again, 85-77

The Detroit Pistons held off a late rally in the fourth quarter Friday night to register their fourth consecutive victory, 85-77, over the Chicago Bulls.

Trailing 23-16 going into the second quarter, Detroit got 12 points from John Mengelt in nine minutes to give the Pistons a 48-39 halftime lead.

With 4:40 remaining in the second quarter, Al Eberhard and Chicago's Norm Van Lier got into a fight after Eberhard was called for a blocking foul against Van Lier.

Van Lier landed two punches and was ejected from the game. But Eberhard, who stayed in, converted a free throw to put Detroit ahead 37-31.

Detroit built up a 67-59 lead after three quarters and saw it dwindle to three points when Mickey Johnson converted two free throws with 4:58 to play in the game, making the score 78-75.

The Pistons held Chicago to only one basket after that as Bob Lanier scored five of his 17 points in the final four minutes to seal the victory.

Mengelt shared high scoring honors with Lanier. Johnson had 18 points for the game high.

Sox split with Pirates

Al Oliver hit two homers and drove in five runs Friday as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Chicago White Sox, 7-6, in the second game of a doubleheader after the White Sox jumped all over rookie pitcher Randy Sealy in the first game en route to a 13-3 win in Bradenton, Fla.

The White Sox opened their second-game scoring with Bill Stein's home run in the second inning. They went to the long ball again while scoring four runs in the fifth when Don Sedholz and pitcher Tim Stoddard homered.

The White Sox scored again in the sixth to tie the game but singles by Dave Parker, Ed Kirkpatrick and Manny Sanguillen broke the tie in the seventh.

In the first game, Chicago swapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth by scoring seven times off Sealy. Mike Ondina had the big hit of the inning, a two-run double.

Chicago got five more in the seventh off Sealy, with Buddy Bradford driving in two of the runs, giving him four for the game.

Bart Johnson wss the winning pitcher in the opener. Cecil Upshaw took the second game loss.

It's official for Toronto

The American League officially awarded an expansion franchise to the city of Toronto Friday with the Labatt's Brewing Co. winning the right to control the club.

The awarding of the franchise to Toronto marked the return of baseball to the Canadian city, which had been without a team since 1967. For 60 yerrs, the Toronto Maple Leafs operated in the Triple-A International League.

After listening to presentations from Labatt's President Don McDougall and another group headed by Phil and Irving Granovsky, the American League owners awarded the franchise, their 14th team, to the brewery for $7 million. Both Toronto and Seattle, which was awarded an AL expansion franchise last month, will begin play in 1977.

Awarding of the team to Labatt's culminated a long struggle for the brewery to get into major league baseball.

Three state champs head gym standouts

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Gymnastics is a sport of building. The best always peak at the right moment and this year's All - Mid-Suburban League team is no exception.

There were three individual state champions as well as sparkling team performances, all carefully timed to reach the closest to perfection when it counted the most.

ALL-AROUND

DANNY MUENZ

Danny Muenz of Hersey has succeeded his brother Kevin as the best gymnast in the MSL.

Muenz, who is a senior, was honored by the league coaches when they voted him the Gary Morava Award as the outstanding senior gymnast.

Muenz had a solid season, leading the Huskies to the MSL's North Division title and a second place finish in the conference meet.

During the season Danny made the Herald's Honor Roll six times as an all-arounder and 15 times in individual events.

When the money was on the line, in the stages leading to the state tournament, Muenz was at his best. Despite a nagging injury, he took district and sectional all-around titles with averages of 8.06 and 8.29 respectively.

He matched his sectional score of 8.29 in the state finals to place third, leading the Huskies to the second place team trophy.

GENE CHRISTENSEN

Choosing between Muenz and the Elk Grove senior for the top gymnast in the league was a coin flip proposition.

Christensen outpointed Muenz in the MSL conference meet, taking that title with an 8.14 average and leading the Grens to the league championship.

Christensen matched Muenz with six Honor Roll appearances as an all-arounder and placed as an individual 18 times, more than any other gymnast.

Fighting the flu, Christensen won a district all-around title with a 7.94 average and was second in the sectional to state champion Craig Martin of Maine South.

Christensen closed out a fine high school career in the state finals with a fourth place finish, averaging 8.10 as the Grens took fourth place as a team.

FLOOR EXERCISE

DOUG ZAHOUR

Prospect's Doug Zahour glittered on the mats this year. He placed second behind Christensen in the conference meet with an 8.45 score and placed highly in the district and sectional with scores of 8.50 and 8.05 respectively.

The Knight senior placed on the Honor Roll twice as a free ex man and led once with an 8.6.

BOB BARUT

Another Hersey gymnast, Barut is the only double winner on the all-conference team.

Besides being a crack trampolinist, Barut took third in the conference meet in free ex with an 8.35 score and scored 8.40 in the district for a third place finish.

At the Rolling Meadows Sectional, Barut placed second with an 8.30 mark.

MIKE ILLINGWORTH

The Rolling Meadows junior won the floor ex event at the Hoffman Estates District with an 8.35 score and went on to score 8.20 in the sectional and take a third place medal.

An all-arounder for the Mustangs, he will be an importnat part of the Meadows program next season.

POMMEL HORSE

TIM CONNELLY

Elk Grove senior Tim Connelly was Mr. Smooth from the start this year and got better with each routine.

He grabbed the conference title with an 8.90 score after placing on the Honor Roll six times during the year.

He took a district title before finishing second in the sectional then threw the best score of the night during the state prelims.

The following night, under the glare of TV lights and a capacity crowd at Prospect High School, Connelly took the state championship with a score of 9.10.

Danny Muenz

DAVE SCHEIBLE

Prospect's curly haired Dave Scheible trailed only Connelly in the conference meet and won district and sectional titles with scores of 8.50 and 8.45 respectively.

A senior for the Knights, Scheible made the Honor Roll five times during the season.

DOUG SMIDL

The side horse man of the future, Fremd's classy junior hit his stride when it counted.

Smidl took third in the conference meet then wrapped up second place finishes in the district and sectional tournaments.

He had the seventh best score (8.15) in the state prelims then threw an 8.40 in the finals to tie for fifth in the state.

HORIZONTAL BAR

KEITH LISZEWSKI

Rolling Meadows' Keith Liszewski powered his way to a phenomenally successful year, placing on the Honor Roll four times during a consistent season.

He began a string of championships by winning the conference meet with an average of 8.70.

The Mustangs' senior then turned up the gas by winning a district title (8.95), a sectional title (9.00) and the state championship (9.00).

Tim Connelly

Doug Zahour

TOM BALLA

Elk Grove's Tom Balla was instrumental in the Grens' season, placing on the Honor Roll four times taking third in the conference with an 8.55 score and tying for first in the sectional with an 8.45.

He qualified for the state finals with an 8.45 and equaled that score in the championship around.

MARK WACLAWSKI

The second punch of Rolling Meadows' high bar team, Waclawski was just a dab of polish behind Liszewski all season.

Waclawski trailed only his teammate in the district (8.15) and then fired an 8.35 in the sectional tournament. He hit an 8.45 in the state prelims then totlaed 8.25 in the finals.

TRAMPOLINE

GLENN JOHNSON

Only a sophomore, Rolling Meadows' Glenn Johnson has an excellent future as a trampolinist.

He hit the Honor Roll three times and placed second in the conference meet with a score of 8.40. He won district and sectional titles then tied for sixth in the state prelims with a mark of 8:30.

BOB BARUT

Hersey's Bob Barut, besides being an all-conference performer in free ex, was the Huskies' trampoline expert.

He grabbed the conference championship with an 8.60 then ran into disaster in the sectionals when he went into the springs and fell to 7.30.

That mistake, attributed to a titled trampoline bed, cost him a shot at the state finals.

Honor Roll appearances (five) than any other tramp man in the conference.

PARALLEL BARS

JIM TANGNEY

Prospect's Jim Tangney, a senior, saved his best for last and it resulted in a state championship for the Knights' P-Bars specialist.

After finishing third in the conference meet (8.25) and second in the district (8.35) he slipped to 7.95 in the sectional meet but still took third to qualify for the state prelims.

He pulled out all the stops then, hitting 8.50 in the prelims. In the state finals he fired an 8.75 to tie Maine South's Craig Martin for the state championship.

DEWEY DEAL

By this time next year, Buffalo Grove sophomore Dewey Deal may have established himself as the league's best all-arounder.

As a P-Bar man, Deal won a district title at 8.35.

He slipped to 7.65 in the sectional but still qualified for the state meet.

Once he'd reached the big time, Deal tied for eighth in the prelims with an 8.25 and then won a fifth place medal in the finals with an 8.50 score.

RICH STANGE

Somewhat overlooked during the regular season, Hersey's Rich Stange never made an appearance on the Honor Roll.

But he tied for fourth in the conference meet and then placed third in the district (8.20) and second in the sectional (8.15).

He reached the state finals with an 8.20 in the prelims and improved that to 8.30 in the finals.

STILL RINGS

TOM STALEY

The conference was packed with good still rings performers this year and the best of the breed was Arlington's Tom Staley.

Only a junior, Staley will have another chance at the state championship that barely eluded him this year.

He placed second in the conference with an 8.35 score then improved that to 8.55 in the district and tied for a sectional title with an 8.60.

He continued to improve with an 8.65 in the state prelims and upped that a fraction to 8.70 to tie for fourth in the finals.

DALE BRUNGRABER

It is a shame Wheeling's Dale Brungraber is graduating because the duels he had with Tom Staley were close and exciting.

He exits the high school limelight after placing first in both the district and sectional tournaments and throwing an 8.80 in the state prelims.

His 8.70 in the state finals tied him for fourth with Arlington's Staley.

DAVE BYCROFT

Rolling Meadows' Dave Bycroft will also be graduating but he will leave with the conference still rings championship in his possession.

After that winning 8.50 performance Bycroft took a district title with an 8.55 and tied for fourth in the sectional meet.

Badminton title to West

Maine West took champions in three singles divisions and posted a three-point win over Maine South Friday afternoon for Central Suburban South Badminton honors.

Coach Royleen Tipton's Warriors, who advanced five entries into the finals, picked up individual titles in first singles with Karen Kiester (11-4, 11-5), third singles with Robin Downing (3-0, 11-8) and fourth singles with Barb Klein (11-6, 11-4).

The Warriors claimed runnerup slots in first doubles with Jane Krauser and Evelyn Johnson falling 15-12, 15-13 and in third doubles with Barb Breider and Laurie Meissner dropping their title match, 15-5, 15-9.

The West team finished 7-0 in duels before capturing the championship.

West finished with 15 points to 12 for Maine South in the battle for South Division honors.

Area teams in Oak Park Relays

The annual Oak Park Relays may still be the state's largest (more than 70 teams in two classes) and oldest (46th year) indoor track meet. It may be the biggest and oldest meet of its kind in the country, for that matter.

But for a handful of Mid-Suburban track teams, today's Oak Park Relays has become the Low Key Relays — and all because the MSL's indoor championships will be held next Wednesday, after Oak Park instead of before as in the past two years.

"Obviously, we're not going to be too concerned about the Oak Park Relays," said Schaumburg coach Denny Garber, whose team is one of seven from the MSL vying for either Class A or B honors starting at 10 a.m. today.

The other teams are Fremd, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Conant, Forest View, and Rolling Meadows.

Fremd coach Pat Brogan, whose squad has only three indoor meets under its belt, admitted that his kids are "keyed up" for Oak Park, but Brogan insisted that his whole philosophy is based on a successful outdoor season.

Forest View will be maintaining as low a profile as possible today at Oak Park. The defending MSL champion Falcons are nursing their wounds — chiefly Mike Harvey and Steve Schellenberger — in preparation for the conference meet.

St. Viator takes season opener

St. Viator scored in five of the seven innings and rolled to an impressive 13-7 victory over Lane Tech Friday afternoon in the area's season baseball opener.

Coach Pat Mahoney's Lions never trailed after putting five runs across in the third inning but had some tense moments in the sixth when Lane erupted for six.

Mark Bonucchi started on the mound for St. Viator and worked five innings for the victory. Gary Schreiber and Lou Citro finished up.

Kevin Mulroy smashed a homer for St. Viator in the second inning, and Kevin Dewey, Mike Robbin, Kevin MacAleer and Mike Maude had singles in a three-run seventh that put the decision out of reach.

Score by innings:

St. Viator	015	013	3—13
Lane Tech	010	006	0— 7

Honor Roll appearances (five) than any other tramp man in the conference.

PARALLEL BARS

JIM TANGNEY

Prospect's Jim Tangney, a senior, saved his best for last and it resulted in a state championship for the Knights' P-Bars specialist.

After finishing third in the conference meet (8.25) and second in the district (8.35) he slipped to 7.95 in the sectional meet but still took third to qualify for the state prelims.

He pulled out all the stops then, hitting 8.50 in the prelims. In the state finals he fired an 8.75 to tie Maine South's Craig Martin for the state championship.

DEWEY DEAL

By this time next year, Buffalo Grove sophomore Dewey Deal may have established himself as the league's best all-arounder.

As a P-Bar man, Deal won a district title at 8.35.

He slipped to 7.65 in the sectional but still qualified for the state meet.

Once he'd reached the big time, Deal tied for eighth in the prelims with an 8.25 and then won a fifth place medal in the finals with an 8.50 score.

For the moment, the site is nameless.

The lakes all have tags — Lake Defiance, Tomahawk, Warrior and Wilderness — but the encompassing 1668 acres that will become a state park is anything but non descript or faceless.

"We hope to have the area in operation by Sept. 1," said Harvey Brown, district fishery biologist. "It should be quite a recreational facility."

The location of northern Illinois' newest state park is near the McHenry Dam and the Fox River. It is bordered on the south by the dam, on the east by Lily Lake Rd. and on the west by River Rd. The north boundary is irregular.

When the naturally preserved complex is baptized, it will be utilized by hikers, bikers, fishermen and outdoor enthusiasts in general.

"The fishing prospects are very encouraging," Brown, who has been conducting fish management programs on the four lakes for the past two years, said.

"The two northern lakes (Tomahawk and Warrior) have responded well to treatment. They will be very entertaining for the outdoor family. Wilderness is sterile."

Warrior is a 20-acre pond and Tomahawk a diminutive nine acres in stature, but both are 10 feet deep and offer perfect habitat for bluegill, largemouth bass, crappie, catfish, bullhead and northern pike.

Brown sampled the fish populations after the state had acquired the land from sod farmers who had previously dammed and levied the water.

By electroshocking the shorelines, Brown found that bluegill were small and showing a slow growing rate because of an excessive amount of vegetation.

The bluegill could hide in the weeds and avoid predator bass and northern pike, thus disrupting the balance of nature.

"We controlled the vegetation down to its normal 10 per cent desirability and then killed the young bluegill of the year with a chemical called Antymicin," Brown explained.

"It was a good kill and provided the surviving bluegill with an opportunity for more food and a larger growth rate.

Outdoors
Jim Cook
Outdoor Editor
394-2300

"The kill also helped the largemouth population, (many of which were in the 3-5 pound category when the lake was sampled)," Brown continued, "because too many members of the sunfish family limit bass reproduction.

"We have a good balance now, after adding 1,000 channel catfish in November. They won't reproduce, but will eat bugs, crayfish and insects and will be a bonus for the fishermen."

Another bonus are northern pike which successfully spawn in an isolated ditch that has been specially flooded and controlled by Brown.

"We trap them out of the river, allow them to spawn, draw the ditch down in the fall, restore the breeders back into the river and stock the young of the year into the northern lakes," he stated, making the rare feat sound simple.

Both Warrior and Tomahawk are small enough to be fished successfully from shore. "I think we'll permit people to launch canoes or rowboats on the lakes, but the long trails leading to them might discourage their transporting any craft."

Lake Defiance, conversely, is the largest body of water at 47.8 acres but may only be available for boaters since its immediate surrounding foundation is unstable peat bog.

"Peat bog is tricky business," Brown said. "We almost had a guy lose his Caterpillar tractor in that sinking marsh and several farmers lost livestock who wandered too far into the bog. It's considered hazardous to stress from both weight and erosion."

Defiance is a lake of glacial origin and had been a favorite to anglers prior to construction of the state park which closed the lake to the public.

"We have sampled bass in the 5-7 pound range in Defiance," Brown said, "and a couple of eight-pound northern have been tested, too. Our plans for Defiance call for a concession of about eight boats to be available through a reservation system."

In addition to the fishing opportunities, an 11-mile bike path will weave its way through the heavily-wooded, scenic terrain where up to 16 deer have been seen daily and migrating flocks of ducks and geese drop out of the sky hourly.

Picnic tables and outdoor restroom facilities are currently under construction and hikers will be awed at the assortment of birds living in the wilderness-type atmosphere.

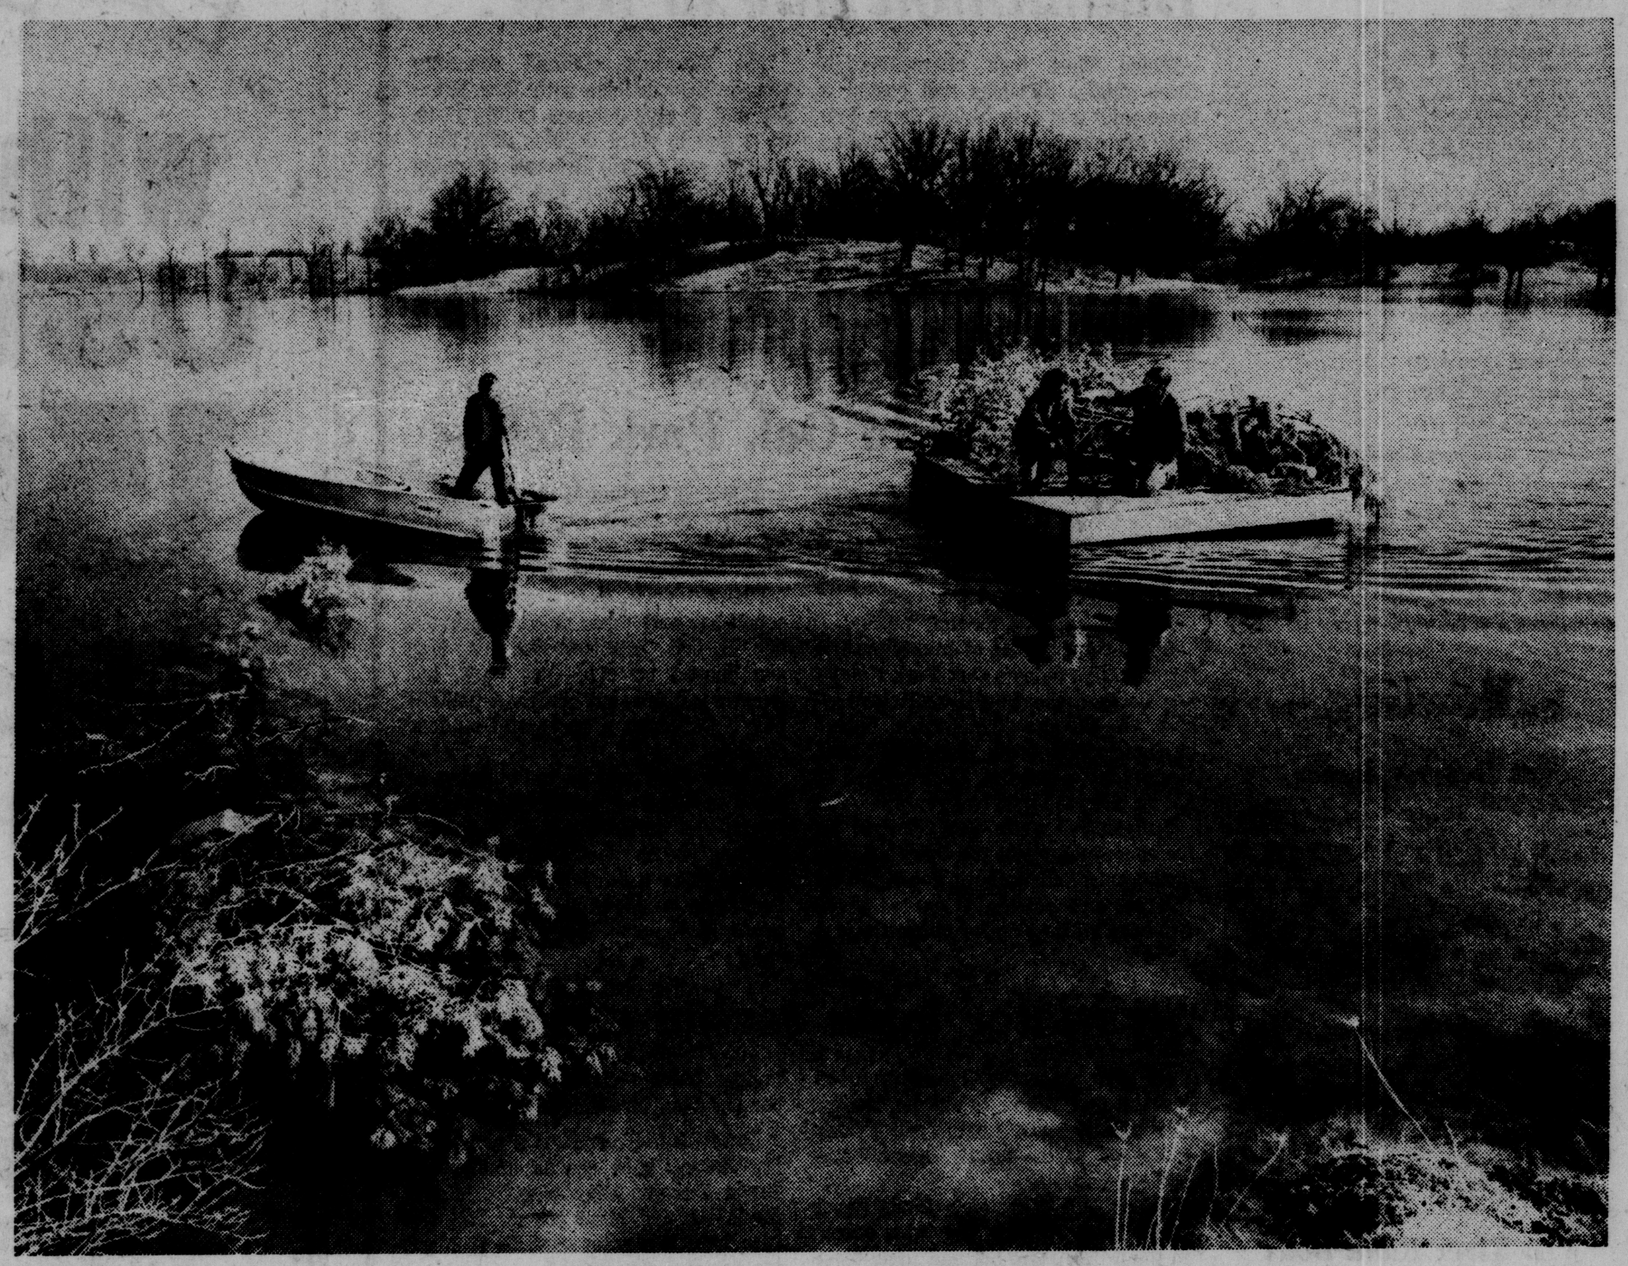
TREE ROPING. Harvey Brown, district fishery biologist for the Illinois Dept. of Conservation, ties branches together for use as fish congregators at new state park near McHenry Dam.



RAFT OF WORK. Pine tree branches submerged in Tomahawk Lake will provide cover and shade for fish fry. The new state park will be open to outdoor enthusiasts Sept. 1.

Forest preserve stocks trout in district lakes

With the fishing season right around the corner, Cook County Forest Preserve District anglers can look forward to three of the major lakes being restocked with 7,000 rainbow trout on Wednesday. This will be the first of three trout restockings this year by Forest Preserve District fish biologists.

Axehead and Belleau lakes in northern Cook County, and Sag Quarry in southwestern Cook County each will be restocked. However, there's a three-day, no-catch period to enable these trout to adjust to their new environment.

These lakes will be closed to all fishing until Saturday, April 3, and they wll be posted and patrolled by Forest Preserve District personnel during this period. This procedure avoids rapid removal of the new trout by experienced, well-equipped anglers.

Belleau Lake is in eastern Des Plaines between Dempster St. and Busse Hwy. Axehead Lake is south of Touhy Ave., between River Road and the Des Plaines River. Sag Quarry is on the east side of Old Archer Ave. at the intersection of Rte. 83 and Archer Ave. The other two trout stockings this year will be conducted in April and May.

April 1 is also the deadline for county trout fishermen to obtain a trout and salmon stamp. This stamp is required for anyone fishing on forest preserve district trout lakes and is available from the state's license distribution system.

June deadline for boat decal renewal

More than 100,000 boaters' registrations expire June 30 and owners are urged to renew them now. "Approximately 50,000 boaters did not respond to the renewal notice issued several months ago," said Tony Dean, director of the Illinois Dept. of Conservation.

"As the deadline draws closer we will begin receiving calls and letters from some of these persons urging us to send their registration decal so they may use their boats in July. However, processing the forms takes several weeks and the registrant runs the risk of delay past the expiration date."

Those applying for boat registration after the June 30 deadline also must remove their numbers as new numbers are assigned after this date.

Cost of boat registration is $4 for two years.

Voracious feeders armed with razor teeth

Northern pike command respect

by VIC WATIA

It's not unusual for pint-sized northern pike to attack fishing lures as big or bigger than they are.

And such vicious displays don't end as pike grow in size, with lunker fish known to take even an occasional duck.

Armed with razor-sharp teeth that slant inward, the pike lives up to its role as a predator, eating about a fifth of its body weight in food each day.

But such behavior is also what makes the pike a prized game fish, and spring can be one of the most productive times of the year to pursue this species.

Depending on locale, the fisherman may refer to the pike simply as "northern," "jacks," or "jackfish," and the younger fish may be called "snakes" or "hammerheads" or a few other choice nicknames.

But regardless of what they are called, the angler usually can count on a fairly interesting duel with pike.

Pike can be taken by most popular methods, including casting, trolling and still fishing. But generally, when it comes to the use of either artificial lures or live bait, experts recommend thinking big.

And when it comes to fishing tackle, baiting casting outfits with some backbone are preferred over buggy-whip rigs.

Spring is an ideal time for pike angling (subject to local regulations on the season) because pike in northern states take to spawning grounds as soon as the ice is out. Pike in southern states, or course, spawn earlier.

Once the spawning is completed, northerns hang around the shallows for some serious feeding, and lunker fish can provide tremendous action for interested anglers.

Vic Watia

Like any predator, the pike enjoys the element of surprise, and prefers cover where it can wait for an unsuspecting victim. Because of its green coloration, weed beds provide ideal camouflage for the pike. Weed beds bordering deep water are ideal places for the novice angler to try his luck.

Big wobbling spoons, such as Daredevils, and weedless spoons, such as the Johnson Minnow, are reliable artificial lures for pike. But some experts rate the Pikie Minnow second to none, and large, single-bladed spinners, such as pike-sized Mepps with squirrel tails, can be equally devastating.

There are several methods of fishing live bait for pike, but one which always seems to produce results is a healthy sucker suspended about 18 inches below a bobber big enough to stay afloat. Big minnows and frozen smelt also are good producers, but local regulations should be checked to see what live bait can be used legally.

Besides the other artificial lures mentioned, the bigger Buck Perry Spoon Plugs can be especially productive for the angler who enjoys trolling for pike.

But the novice angler should be warned not to try any bass fishing lower lip locks on this toothy species, not unless he's willing to suffer the consequences.

If a large net or gaff hook isn't available, the best method is to get a good grip behind the head and press in on the gill covers, which will paralyze the fish. Some anglers prefer to grab pike by the eyes, which has the same effect but could cause more damage if the angler plans on releasing the fish.

Also, because of the sharp teeth, the beginner should use a steel leader about 10 or 12 inches long between line and lure to avoid lost fish.

"The fishing prospects are very encouraging," Brown, who has been conducting fish management programs on the four lakes for the past two years, said.

"The two northern lakes (Tomahawk and Warrior) have responded well to treatment. They will be very entertaining for the outdoor family. Wilderness is sterile."

Warrior is a 20-acre pond and Tomahawk a diminutive nine acres in stature, but both are 10 feet deep and offer perfect habitat for bluegill, largemouth bass, crappie, catfish, bullhead and northern pike.

Brown sampled the fish populations after the state had acquired the land from sod farmers who had previously dammed and levied the water.

By electroshocking the shorelines, Brown found that bluegill were small and showing a slow growing rate because of an excessive amount of vegetation.

The bluegill could hide in the weeds and avoid predator bass and northern pike, thus disrupting the balance of nature.

"We controlled the vegetation down to its normal 10 per cent desirability and then killed the young bluegill of the year with a chemical called Antymicin," Brown explained.

"It was a good kill and provided the surviving bluegill with an opportunity for more food and a larger growth rate.

"The kill also helped the largemouth population, (many of which were in the 3-5 pound category when the lake was sampled)," Brown continued, "because too many members of the sunfish family limit bass reproduction.

"We have a good balance now, after adding 1,000 channel catfish in November. They won't reproduce, but will eat bugs, crayfish and insects and will be a bonus for the fishermen."

Another bonus are northern pike which successfully spawn in an isolated ditch that has been specially flooded and controlled by Brown.

"We trap them out of the river, allow them to spawn, draw the ditch down in the fall, restore the breeders back into the river and stock the young of the year into the northern lakes," he stated, making the rare feat sound simple.

Both Warrior and Tomahawk are small enough to be fished successfully from shore. "I think we'll permit people to launch canoes or rowboats on the lakes, but the long trails leading to them might discourage their transporting any craft."

Lake Defiance, conversely, is the largest body of water at 47.8 acres but may only be available for boaters since its immediate surrounding foundation is unstable peat bog.

"Peat bog is tricky business," Brown said. "We almost had a guy lose his Caterpillar tractor in that sinking marsh and several farmers lost livestock who wandered too far into the bog. It's considered hazardous to stress from both weight and erosion."

Defiance is a lake of glacial origin and had been a favorite to anglers prior to construction of the state park which closed the lake to the public.

"We have sampled bass in the 5-7 pound range in Defiance," Brown said, "and a couple of eight-pound northern have been tested, too. Our plans for Defiance call for a concession of about eight boats to be available through a reservation system."

In addition to the fishing opportunities, an 11-mile bike path will weave its way through the heavily-wooded, scenic terrain where up to 16 deer have been seen daily and migrating flocks of ducks and geese drop out of the sky hourly.

Picnic tables and outdoor restroom facilities are currently under construction and hikers will be awed at the assortment of birds living in the wilderness-type atmosphere.

Despite its currently nameless status, Illinois' newest state park could become a household word in the vocabulary of northwest suburbanites.

RAFT OF WORK. Pine tree branches submerged in Tomahawk Lake will provide cover and shade for fish fry. The new state park will be open to outdoor enthusiasts Sept. 1.

Forest preserve stocks trout in district lakes

With the fishing season right around the corner, Cook County Forest Preserve District anglers can look forward to three of the major lakes being restocked with 7,000 rainbow trout on Wednesday. This will be the first of three trout restockings this year by Forest Preserve District fish biologists.

Axehead and Belleau lakes in northern Cook County, and Sag Quarry in southwestern Cook County each will be restocked. However, there's a three-day, no-catch period to enable these trout to adjust to their new environment.

These lakes will be closed to all fishing until Saturday, April 3, and they wll be posted and patrolled by Forest Preserve District personnel during this period. This procedure avoids rapid removal of the new trout by experienced, well-equipped anglers.

Belleau Lake is in eastern Des Plaines between Dempster St. and Busse Hwy. Axehead Lake is south of Touhy Ave., between River Road and the Des Plaines River. Sag Quarry is on the east side of Old Archer Ave. at the intersection of Rte. 83 and Archer Ave. The other two trout stockings this year will be conducted in April and May.

April 1 is also the deadline for county trout fishermen to obtain a trout and salmon stamp. This stamp is required for anyone fishing on forest preserve district trout lakes and is available from the state's license distribution system.

June deadline for boat decal renewal

More than 100,000 boaters' registrations expire June 30 and owners are urged to renew them now. "Approximately 50,000 boaters did not respond to the renewal notice issued several months ago," said Tony Dean, director of the Illinois Dept. of Conservation.

"As the deadline draws closer we will begin receiving calls and letters from some of these persons urging us to send their registration decal so they may use their boats in July. However, processing the forms takes several weeks and the registrant runs the risk of delay past the expiration date."

Those applying for boat registration after the June 30 deadline also must remove their numbers as new numbers are assigned after this date.

Cost of boat registration is $4 for two years.

Voracious feeders armed with razor teeth

Northern pike command respect

by VIC WATIA

It's not unusual for pint-sized northern pike to attack fishing lures as big or bigger than they are.

And such vicious displays don't end as pike grow in size, with lunker fish known to take even an occasional duck.

Armed with razor-sharp teeth that slant inward, the pike lives up to its role as a predator, eating about a fifth of its body weight in food each day.

But such behavior is also what makes the pike a prized game fish, and spring can be one of the most productive times of the year to pursue this species.

Depending on locale, the fisherman may refer to the pike simply as "northern," "jacks," or "jackfish," and the younger fish may be called "snakes" or "hammerheads" or a few other choice nicknames.

But regardless of what they are called, the angler usually can count on a fairly interesting duel with pike.

Pike can be taken by most popular methods, including casting, trolling and still fishing. But generally, when it comes to the use of either artificial lures or live bait, experts recommend thinking big.

And when it comes to fishing tackle, baiting casting outfits with some backbone are preferred over buggy-whip rigs.

Spring is an ideal time for pike angling (subject to local regulations on the season) because pike in northern states take to spawning grounds as soon as the ice is out. Pike in southern states, or course, spawn earlier.

Once the spawning is completed, northerns hang around the shallows for some serious feeding, and lunker fish can provide tremendous action for interested anglers.

Vic Watia

Like any predator, the pike enjoys the element of surprise, and prefers cover where it can wait for an unsuspecting victim. Because of its green coloration, weed beds provide ideal camouflage for the pike. Weed beds bordering deep water are ideal places for the novice angler to try his luck.

Big wobbling spoons, such as Daredevils, and weedless spoons, such as the Johnson Minnow, are reliable artificial lures for pike. But some experts rate the Pikie Minnow second to none, and large, single-bladed spinners, such as pike-sized Mepps with squirrel tails, can be equally devastating.

There are several methods of fishing live bait for pike, but one which always seems to produce results is a healthy sucker suspended about 18 inches below a bobber big enough to stay afloat. Big minnows and frozen smelt also are good producers, but local regulations should be checked to see what live bait can be used legally.

Besides the other artificial lures mentioned, the bigger Buck Perry Spoon Plugs can be especially productive for the angler who enjoys trolling for pike.

But the novice angler should be warned not to try any bass fishing lower lip locks on this toothy species, not unless he's willing to suffer the consequences.

If a large net or gaff hook isn't available, the best method is to get a good grip behind the head and press in on the gill covers, which will paralyze the fish. Some anglers prefer to grab pike by the eyes, which has the same effect but could cause more damage if the angler plans on releasing the fish.

Also, because of the sharp teeth, the beginner should use a steel leader about 10 or 12 inches long between line and lure to avoid lost fish.

Ask Andy

Photography—hobby of the world

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Lynn Barra, 12, of Edison, N.J., for her question:
WHO INVENTED THE CAMERA?

For thousands of years man has used paintings and sculptures to preserve images he has seen. In prehistoric times, the cave man used stains to decorate the walls of caves with scenes he wanted to preserve. Nowadays even the most inexperienced person can preserve memorable moments. With the push of a button and the click of a shutter, the camera will record what the eye can see, and sometimes even things the eye can't see.

The history of the camera goes back more than 400 years to the early 1500s. In those days artists used a large structure called a camera obscura to help them record pictures. The camera obscura was a large, dark room with a small hole in one wall. As light entered the hole it would form an upside-down picture on the opposite wall.

By the early 1600s portable chambers were available so that artists could carry them into the country to sketch landscapes. The camera obscura was not really a camera in today's sense of the word, but it was a start.

In the early 1700s the German physicist Johann Heinrich Schulze discovered a most interesting fact — that certain silver salts are sensitive to light. While Schulze proved that it was possible to capture an image using the camera obscura and silver salts, he did not try to make his images permanent. Joseph Niepce, however, developed a metal plate containing light-sensitive chemicals on one side. And in 1820 the French chemist took the world's first photograph.

Louis J. M. Daguerre was a French inventor who worked with Joseph Niepce. Daguerre discovered a method of treating sensitive copper plates with mercury vapor that would produce clear and sharp images. His introduction of these plates in 1839 is generally accepted as the beginning of photography.

About the time that Daguerre was cashing in on his discovery, a British scientist announced to the world that he had developed a light-sensitive paper. This was the forerunner of modern-day film, and it had a distinct advantage over Daguerre's plates.

With plates, only one picture could be produced. With the light-sensitive paper, a number of prints could be developed. The bad news, however, was that the images were not as clear.

From this point on it was just a matter of one improvement following improvement before the camera could be placed in the hands of ordinary folk. And by 1888 the American inventor George Eastman did just that.

Photography is one of the most popular hobbies in the world. It is estimated that more than half the families in the United States own a camera. The camera you own may be the development of one company, but its history can be traced back hundreds of years to the camera obscura — the dark chamber.

HOW DID THE GAME OF SOCCER BEGIN?

Fast and exciting games very similar to soccer were probably played as early as 400 B.C. by the Chinese. Historians tell us the Romans had teams competing to move a ball across a line on a field aound 200 A.D. After being played under a variety of rules and conditions, soccer came into its own in 1848 when the firt set of rules was adopted in Cambridge, England. Enthusiasm for the game spread rapidly, and before 1900 it was being played internationally by both professional and amateur teams. Today it is one of the most popular games in the world.

Soccer is a rough, fast game that requires great physical endurance and mental concentration. Each team has 11 players who try to maneuver the round ball into the goal area. The field size varies, depending on the type of competition, but it can be as long as 120 yards and as wide as 80 yards. The players wear no protective uniform, as they do in football, but swift defensive and offensive moves involving bodily contact make up much of the play. Only the goalkeeper may use his hands on the ball. The other players are allowed to use their feet, head, chest and thighs.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D I L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Ready for a camper? You can go deluxe — at $170,000 — or just buy a trailer

What's 10 to 35-feet long, comfy and convenient and can fly? Would you believe a camper?

It's time to start thinking about trips to the wilderness or that state park you always wanted to visit. With a camper you can go almost anywhere and save the cost of expensive motel rooms.

Price — the flying-model camper costs about $170,000 — and family needs will determine which type of recreational vehicle (RV) will be most suitable. Although the spartan existence is still possible in a reasonably priced camping trailer, some owners choose motor homes that can only be described as palatial.

One getaway designed to let people take all the comforts along for the ride is the Winnebago Heli-Home. It's a revamped Sikorsky H-19 helicopter and can actually fly. In addition to the full carpeting, shower, AM-FM stereo tape deck, tinted windows and other goodies built into many earthbound vehicles, Heli-Home buyers can select the optional amphibious floats for water landings and an electro-mechanical cargo sling.

The camper definitely has come a long way in creature comforts and styling, said a salesman from Horace Dodge, in Elgin. Swiveling around in the drivers seat of a $43,900 "Classic" motor home, he emphasized that the 32-foot model is designed to give the feeling that you're in an aircraft cockpit.

"It even looks like a plane coming down the highway," he said. Added attractions for the discerning traveler: color television, leather interior, air conditioning and a microwave oven.

The enthusiastic dealer was among exhibitors in the 8th Annual Camping and Travel Show held earlier this year at Arlington Park Exposition Center in Arlington Heights. Show visitors ogled and clambered through some 250 RV's packed into the exhibit hall.

Find out as much as you can about campers from camping enthusiasts before you jump into ownership, advises Palatine dealer Bill Kervin. He is executive director of the Chicagoland Recreational Vehicle Dealers Assn., sponsor of the Arlington Park show.

People who own campers generally are good talkers, the kind of people who come right up and sink a can of beer in your hand, Kervin said. That's why friends and RV dealers who are active campers can be called on for candid advice.

Start out with a small camping trailer or travel trailer, Kervin advised. Buyers can trade up to a larger, luxurious model when they have more know-how on the features and size suited to their lifestyles. The would-be buyer can rent a camper for a preview experience.

"It's not a bad idea to try one out close by," said Joe Galto, owner of Motorhome Rentals, Inc. in Streamwood. He charges weekly fees plus a 12 cents a mile for motor home rental.

"You can compare costs, but look for quality," Galto said. He advised buyers to check the quality of construction, and whether service is available where the unit is purchased.

When you're talking about buying a trailer, make sure your car has the size and power required to pull the RV, Galto added. "If you have a VW, you can't take along a 25-foot trailer," he said.

"What a consumer is really trying to do is to get a vehicle to fit your desires," said Hilton Peaster, executive director of the Recreational Vehicle Dealers of America (RVDA). The Deerfield-based association offers consumer services such as a directory of sales, service and rental information.

An RV owner can use the directory to locate emergency service when he's on

From humble beginnings...

He's 13 inches tall, weighs 8½ pounds and without him the show would not go on.

They call him Oscar and at 9 p.m. Monday, Chicago time, he will be the center attraction as the house lights come up at the Los Angeles Music Center for the 48th presentation of the Academy Awards.

Millions of viewers will turn on television sets around the world for a glimpse of the glamorous. They will "ooohh" and "aahhh" at their favorite stars and wonder who will be taking Oscar home for their mantelpiece.

Will it be Jack Nicholson or Al Pacino? Can "Jaws" — the biggest movie money-maker of all times — beat out the favored "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest?" And the biggest question of all: Will Liz come with Dick?

But there will be no viewers who will take more of an interest in the extravaganza than the employes at Dodge Tohpies and Awards in Crystal Lake. Dodge is the home of Oscar; it is where every year, several months before the big production, he is reborn.

"Everybody here waits for awards night and watches the show," says Charles Corda, manager of special awards at Dodge. "It's funny but we never discuss out here at the plant who's going to win. We know somebody is going to win what we've made and that's what's important."

Dodge has been making the stern-looking little fellow since 1931. Four years ago the Oscar operation was moved to the Crystal Lake plant when an earthquake shook the Los Angeles area and all but destroyed the Dodge building there.

Oscar will be 49 years old this May. He was born in 1927 when 36 leaders of a burgeoning film industry met and organized the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. It was a hard time for the movies. The Actors Equity Association was trying to organize performers, and studio czars were afraid of demands for higher pay. Audiences were starting to get bored with movies that couldn't talk and actors in Hollywood were getting bad names for themselves at notorious wild parties.

On May 11, 1927, more than 300 movie people gathered at an industry banquet at the Biltomore Hotel in Los Angeles. Douglas Fairbanks, the Academy's first president, was moderator. Talks were presented by such industry leaders as Louis B. Mayer, Mary Pickford and Cecil B. DeMille.

Mayer suggested the Academy could focus attention on cinematic achievements by presenting awards of merit. Actor Conrad Nagel agreed, saying, "whatever we give, it should be a symbol of continuing progress — militant, dynamic."

Art director Cedric Gibbons began sketching a figure on the tablecloth of a stalwart man, standing on a reel of film and holding a crusader's sword. He later put his idea on paper and a sculptor, George Stanley, molded the figure.

In 1931 Oscar got his name. Margaret Herrick, retired executive director of the Academy saw the statuette and studied it carefully, exclaiming, "Why, he looks like my Uncle Oscar."

The first Oscar statues, presented in 1928, were made by hand, a costly process. Then Ray Dodge, 1924 Olympic runner and medal winner, came along. He decided that he could mass produce trophies inexpensively and won a commission for the Oscar.

"Mr. Dodge was living in California at the time, hob-nobbing with movie producers and some of the stars," remembers Corda. "He was a very aggressive man, a good salesman and hard worker until he made his first million in 1936."

Corda started with Dodge Trophies, which has since had several owners, 47 years ago. Ray Dodge had a plant at the time in Chicago. Although the Oscars were then made in California, Corda remembers movie moguls dropping by the Chicago plant for a visit with Dodge.

"We met a lot of them," says Corda. "It's hard to remember. Marlene Dietrich came by. So did the Olympic runner Jesse Owens."

The Crystal Lake firm, in a small industrial complex next to a book bindery at Rtes. 14 and 31, keeps the original Oscar mold in a secret vault until several months before the Academy Awards. Then the figure is taken out so production can begin.

"The mold is made of bronze," Corda says. "It's good for about 10,000, 20,000 maybe 50,000 trophies. This year we started out with Oscar No. 1716. The mold is hardly worn. We're just breaking it in."

A small group of workers put out the Oscar each year. The process, if done continuously, takes only about six hours, says Dodge President Paul Feltrinelli.

A metal alloy, sturdy but not expensive says Feltrinelli, is heated to about 800 degrees Fahrenheit and poured into the mold. The only time the Oscar has not been made from the alloy was four years during World War II when metal was an essential war material. Oscar was then made out of plaster but after the war, the plaster statuettes were exchanged for metal ones.

Once the figure is cooled, he is scraped with a sharp knife to eliminate scratches, buffed and polished, gold plated several times, finished off with several coats of lacquer and then assembled. During the process, Oscar is under heavy guard.

"We watch him like a hawk. So far we haven't had any problems with Oscar getting away," says Corda, who added that the Oscar secretly is shipped several weeks before the awards and kept in an undisclosed California location under lock and key.

The Oscars are supposed to look exactly alike but it always doesn't turn out that way. "The flow lines of the casting aren't always the same," Corda says. "You could put all the Oscars in a group and swear that some of them are smiling and some are serious."

The Oscars are supposed to be the same size but Corda remembers a smaller mold. He believes it was used for the awards presentation in 1939. Shirley Temple handed Walt Disney a full-sized Oscar for Snow White and seven little ones for the dwarfs. Disney is the biggest Oscar winner by far, collecting 30 of the statues before his death.

Feltrinelli refuses to say how much an Oscar is worth dollarwise because he believes it would detract from the award. "The monetary value is insignificant but the real value of the Oscar is priceless," he says. "What's the value of the Congressional Medal of Honor?"

Dodge made 60 Oscars this year although no one in the plant knows exactly how many will be given. After the presentation is over, they will come back to the Crystal Lake plant so the winners names can be engraved on a plate at the base. The only mistake that's ever been made, the story goes, is in 1937 when Spencer Tracy's Oscar for "Captain Courageous" came back to him dedicated to Dick Tracy.

"Before we had them inscribed in California but this year the Oscar will be coming back so the gold plate will match perfectly," Feltrinelli says. "They all won't come back at the same time. Some will come back a few days after. Others, months later because the winners won't let go."

Each Oscar is trademarked and registered with the Academy which keeps a list of all the winners. The Academy knows where every Oscar is; it is still keeping the one refused by George C. Scott when he won best actor for his role in "Patton."

Dodge will repair or replace any Oscar that has been destroyed or damaged but in the last four years only three have been returned to the Crystal Lake plant. One, for a winner in the short subjects category, came back only recently because the lacquer and some of the gold plate had worn away.

"The guy either handled the Oscar to death or had some of kind of cleaning lady," says Feltrinelli. "She must have used Borax."

Corda remembers two Oscars returned to the plant two years ago, both with their heads off. "They never tell us whose Oscars they are or the story behind them," he says. "We always wonder. You hear a lot of stories — like someone threw it at somebody or hit it with a baseball bat. Stories like that — but the Academy tries to keep everything a secret."

Corda also remembers hearing about someone trying to hock an Oscar once. It's only hearsay but he said the hock was not successful. The Academy now has a rule that anyone who wants to rid himself of the Oscar must sell it back to the Academy.

Just because Oscar is done, things aren't quiet at Dodge. The firm also makes the Emmys.

The Academy story: the show always goes on Making Oscar shine

Everyone loves Oscar. And the Academy Awards have become so popular in the last 48 years that millions look forward to the presentation every spring.

It wasn't always this way. The first awards ceremony, in January, 1929, went off with little fanfare. Since the winners were known for several weeks, there were no surprises.

Fifteen Oscars were presented by Douglas Fairbanks to the winners, all men except for a young woman named Janet Gaynor who was honored for acting in three pictures, "Sunrise," "Seventh Heaven" and "Street Angel."

Within a week of the presentations, the Academy Awards were the talk of the industry. By the time of the second awards in 1930, the golden statuette was a star in his own right.

While nearly every Academy presentation is well-noted, there have been highlights.

In 1932 the Academy had its first tie. In the best actor category, Fredric March for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and Wallace Beery for "The Champ" both took home Oscars.

The short subjects award also came into being that year and Walt Disney made the first of many trips to the podium to receive an Oscar for the best cartoon. He also received an honorary statuette for creating Mickey Mouse.

There are many unrehearsed moments at the awards presentation and in 1932, director Frank Capra had an embarrassing experience. Nominated for the first time, and later to win three Oscars, Capra got to his feet and started for the rostrum when the presenter said, "Come and get it Frank."

Capra was about 40 feet from his chair when he realized that the man was motioning to Frank Lloyd, the real winner for "Cavalcade," and later described his return to his seat as "the longest crawl in history."

In 1935, "It Happened One Night" swept the awards. Claudette Colbert, not expecting to win, was getting on a train for New York at the moment her name was announced as winner for best actress.

She was whisked off the train and Sante Fe officials were persuaded to delay its departure while a taxi sped her to the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles, fortunately only a short distance away.

Highlights of the 1937 show were the presentation, for the first time, of Oscars to a supporting actor and actress. The honors went to Walter Brennan for "Come and Get It" and Gale Sondergaard for "Anthony Adverse."

For several years results of the voting were given in advance to newspapers for release at 11 p.m. but in 1940 guests arriving for the affair, could buy the 8:45 p.m. edition of a newspaper which announced the winning achievements. It was the year "Gone With the Wind" took many of the awards.

An error on the 1940 news release brought into being the sealed-envelope system for the 1941 awards. It has been used ever since.

War came before the banquet in 1942, and the stars who had worn ermine wraps, evening gowns and orchids to previous dinners were asked to dress informally. The big story that year was sister versus sister. Joan Fontaine and her sister Olivia de Havilland were nominated for the Best Actress and Miss Fontaine won for "Suspicion."

The entire program went on network radio for the first time in 1944. "Going My Way" won best picture and acting awards for Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald as supporting actor. Fitzgerald was up for both best actor and best supporting actor and rules were then adopted to make this impossible.

The year 1953 marked a milestone in Oscar's life as the awards program in entirety was broadcast on television for the first time. Some 80 million viewers saw Oscars awarded to "The Greatest Show on Earth" and to Gary Cooper for "High Noon."

In 1959 millions chuckled as David Niven, who won as Oscar for "Separate Tables" stumbled his way to the podium. "I'm so loaded down with good-luck charms I could hardly make the steps," he said.

didn't go on the air because television performers were on strike. The Academy took the position that the Awards were more important than the reporting of them and the show would go on, broadcast or no broadcast. Two hours before the start of the presentation the strike was settled and the show went on.

The Academy hasn't missed a year but in 1968 the program and broadcast were postpohed for two days out of respect for Dr. Martin Luther King who was assassinated a few days before the scheduled program and whose funeral was on the day set for the awards.

In 1969 the Academy Awards had another tie. Barbra Streisand and Katharine Hepburn received an identical number of votes and each was awarded an Oscar — Miss Streisand for her "Funny Girl" and Miss Hepburn for "The Lion in Winter."

Four years later Marlon Brando, winner in the best actor category for "The Godfather," caused a stir at the presentation by refusing to accept his award. He sent an Indian woman, Sasheen Littlefeather, to make his speech protesting the treatment of American Indians.

But no one will forget the Academy Awards of 1974, the year of the streakers. As David Niven was introducing Elizabeth Taylor to announce the best picture, an unidentified male streaker enlivened the dull proceedings. The streaker then ran quickly off the stage.

the road, Peaster said. Member dealers participate in a "rescue plan" to aid sales and rental customers who experience RV breakdown problems away from home.

Peaster said one of the RV buyer's potential problems is the recent disappearance of some manufacturers from the market. Check a dealer's reputation and the manufacturer's reputation before you decide to buy a unit, he said.

If a dealer has been in business less than a year, check his previous business experience. "Ask to talk to other owners, if possible," Peaster said. Camping clubs, other RV owners and the service personnel at a dealership can provide information.

"I would measure a dealer by how much interest he shows in you, not just your pocketbook," Peaster continued. A dealer should spend time determining what buyers want in terms of living and storage space, quality and appearance.

Once you've bought a camper, he added, take it home and park it in the driveway. Spend the night in your new RV. You'll probably discover that you forgot to pack a few household essentials. Then pack up your gear and take to the road. "We have a saying, '50 million campers can't be wrong,'" Peaster said.

A free brochure entitled, "See the U.S.A. the Camping Way" has been prepared by the dealers association as a Bicentennial promotion. Campers can obtain a copy of the brochure by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Recreational Vehicle Dealers of America, 711 Orchard St., Deerfield, Ill. 60015.

General information about camper rental rates, types of RV's and sources of travel and vacation information are included in the RVDA booklet.

Single copies of the RVDA directory of sales, service and rental information are available at the same address for $3 plus postage.

RV travelers will find plenty of company when they travel. An estimated 400,000 RV's will be sold in the U.S. this year, for a tab of some $2.8 billion.

A glossary for the RV buyer

Campers, or recreational vehicles, come in all shapes and sizes. Here's a list of basic kinds of vehicles, prepared by Chicagoland Recreational Vehicle Dealers Assn.:

Motor homes. Most common models are built on modified truck frames. Larger units have heavy duty suspension, auxiliary gas tanks. Four to eight persons can sleep in the units. Cooking, lighting, refrigeration and bathing facilities are included. Length generally various from 15-feet to 35-feet. Approximate cost, $7,400 to $30,000.

Mini-motor home. A type of motor home sometimes called a "chopped van." A standard delivery van with the van area behind the driver's seat replaced with a camper body. Uusally sleeps four and has kitchen and bathroom facilities. Average cost, $8,000.

Van conversion. A type of motor home that usually has a raised roof, cooking and sleeping facilities, a toilet, sometimes showers. Cost, approximately $7,000.

Travel trailer. Smaller units, which sleep four to six persons, and can be towed by intermediate size cars. Most have a toilet, shower, gas range with oven, refrigerator, cabinets, closets, dinette. Length from 10 to 35-feet. Cost, $750 to $18,000.

Fold-down or camping trailers. Collapsible units which provide living and sleeping quarters for up to 8 persons. Length and capacity vary. Some have aluminum doors, glass or plastic windows. Available in soft or hard top, they cost $500 to $3,000.

Fifth wheel. A travel trailer which has a swivel-type hitch mounted in the bed of a tow truck. The front extends over the pickup truck bed. Cost, $4,000 to $15,000 and higher.

Truck campers. Also called slide-ins, the units are mounted in the bed of a pickup truck. Sleeps four to six. Dinette, cabinets, stove, often a bathroom featured. From 6 to 12-feet with cab for sleeping.

Pickup covers. Also called caps or shells, the portable units provide shelter above beds of pickup trucks. Appliances are usually not included but may be added. Most have interior walls and windows. Cost ranges from $250 to $1,000.

Aviation stamp released

Designer Robert E. Cunningham was among postal and aviation officials participating in first day ceremonies March 19 when the Commercial Aviation Stamp was released at O'Hare Airport.

The stamp, Cunningham's first postal design, debuted in the giant hangar of the 928th Tactical Airlift Group amid martial music by the Ft. Sheridan Military Band and presentation of the flag by its Colonial Color Guard.

Several hundred spectators attended the ceremony which was sponsored jointly by the U.S. Postal Service and the Air Transport Association.

Remarks by Paul R. Ignatius, Association President and Chief Executive Officer; Clarence B. Gels, Regional Postmaster General, and Wm. F. Bulger, U.S. Deputy Postmaster General, marked the 50th birthday of commercial aviation and noted that more air mail moves in and out of Chicago than any other city in the world.

Stamp notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

Bulger, standing in for Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, said stamp collecting is the fastest growing hobby in America and that the popularity of first day cover collecting is increasing.

"Typically, the number of first day cancellations is about half a million," Bulger said, "although a new record was set in 1969 when there were 8 million cancellations for the First Man on the Moon stamp."

Several aviation pioneers participated in the ceremonies, including Edmund J. Donzart who was an air mail clerk for the first commercial air flight; G. T. Lundrich, a member of the ground crew when Charles A. Lindberg began air mail service between Chicago and St. Louis; Al Palermo, who flew the Salt Lake City/Los Angeles run and J. C. Rays who maintained airplane engines for the early pilots.

Souvenir albums were presented to the special guests and, after the ceremonies, Cunningham autographed official first day covers, which were attached to the program, for a crowd of stamp enthusiasts.

The temporary postal station did a constant business in stamp sheets, souvenir pages and cancellations. For collectors who still wish the Commercial Aviation first day cancellation, requests will be accepted through March 31. Send your covers to "Commercial Aviation Stamp, AMF-O'Hare, Chicago, Ill. 60666" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

Chicago museum features American poster exhibit

"Images of an Era," the first museum exhibition to focus exclusively on American posters, opens Thursday at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry.

Concentrating on the years 1945 through 1975, the exhibit contains posters which for the past generation have lined the walls of New York subway stations, brightened the bedrooms of students, hung in chrome and plexiglass-frames among serious art collections and brought notices to big-city America's minority communities.

A collection of 200 posters will be on display through May 2. A 12-minute multi-media presentation traces the development of the American poster from the mid-1800s to the present.

The exhibit can be seen 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free.

April is Monster Month at Shedd Aquarium

The John G. Shedd Aquarium in Chicago will feature special displays on sea monsters during April, designated as "Monster Month."

A special display of photos and graphics from the book "The Monsters of Loch Ness" by Roy Mackel will be shown with examples of real and imagined monsters of the deep. Seas monsters will be highlighted in films and displays.

Gems, rocks on display

Collections of gems, rocks, minerals, fossils and jewelry will be on display today and Sunday at the Des Plaines Valley Geological Society's Gem and Mineral Show in Des Plaines.

Members will demonstrate jewelry making, faceting and rock cutting and polishing. The show, noon to 10 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, will be at the Rand Park Field House, 2025 Miner St.

Admission is 75 cents for adults, and 25 cents for children ages 9 to 12. Children under 9 will be admitted free.

Television viewers don't like documentaries, Nielsen says

by Joan Hanauer

"Starsky and Hutch" was the most popular television program in the country last week.

"Starsky and Hutch?" Well, that's what the Nielsen ratings say, but what they prove is something else.

What they probably prove is that ABC, which apparently can make nothing but money plays this year, came to the correct decision when it decided to cut way back on its excellent documentary schedule.

There were howls of dismay at the time, but the fact of the matter is it was documentaries on CBS and NBC that pushed the ordinarily popular show to the top of the heap.

What happened was that "Starsky," in part by default, garnered an incredible 61 share of the audience.

While "Starsky" sat in first place, the CBS and NBC documentaries occupied the 71 and 72 spots in the lineup, which were next-to-last and last place.

In case you missed the documentaries, and the Nielsen numbers indicate most of the nation did, NBC's cellar dweller was "The Big Dog Track In The Sky - Plainfield Bets Its Future." The program was a long look at a small new Connecticut town where a dog track opened Jan. 2.

The Nielsen share on that was 13, which is about as unlucky as a network program can get.

CBS didn't do much better with "The Second Battle of Britain" — probably the first Battle of Britain would have drawn a lot bigger share of the audience than the 15 Britain's post-World War II problems attracted.

A beating of this kind in the rating means the networks will be doing some heavy thinking about their documentaries, but it doesn't necessarily mean that drastic cuts are in order.

Just possibly, the networks might decide to concentrate future attention on subjects closer to home for the average viewer than dogs tracks in a remote corner of Connecticut or Britain's plight.

One sidelight on the "Starsky" situation is that ABC fully expected to take first place in the week's Nielsen rating — but with the final, two-hour episode of "Rich Man, Poor Man." Instead "Rich Man" came in second, although with its finest showing of the series.

NBC special examines American liberties

"Liberty," a definition of American freedoms, will be broadcast Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. on NBC as part of the network's salute to the Bicentennial.

NBC News Correspondent David Brinkley will narrate the program which examines how Americans fought in the Revolution to keep their freedoms and how freedom must be fought for today if they are to remain alive.

Brinkley will trace the establishment of our nation with the Constitution and of our individual liberties with the Bill of Rights. He will report on the old freedoms fought for in the Revolution — trial by jury, representative government and freedom of speech, and the new freedoms — of religion, of the press of assembly and of redress of grievances.

The program also deals with the problems of minority groups whose rights are supposedly protected by the Amendments to the Constitution. He recalls the Black Revolution of the 50s and 60s, the internment of Japanese-Americans in 1942 and the problems of Indians as they try to live free in our society.

The special will also examine selected cases of individuals who have fought to retain their rights.

Thoughts on a Mattress
What's in a name?
Shakespeare said, "A rose by any other name etc."
In the mattress business the magic name is "Orthopedic."
Did you ever try to figure out what an Orthopedic mattress is? The best brains in the U.S. Government apparently couldn't figure it out either. A few years ago the Federal Trade Commission made the mattress manufacturers stop using the term "Orthopedic" on their mattresses and in their advertising.
So the big mattress makes started calling their mattresses "This-A-Pedic," "That-A-Pedic," "Whose-A-Pedic," What's-A-Pedic" — they had to add another chapter to the dictionary for all the Pedics. I guess the big mattress makers figured a mattress by any other name would smell as sweet.
We think our customers might like to name their own mattress. If they want a glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Cleopatra." If they want a funny glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Bob Cleopatra." If they want it sexy, we'll call it "Marilyn."
If they want it endorsed by some famous orthopedic surgeon, we'll call it "Doctor Ortho." If they just want a famous name, we'll call it Napoleon, or Joan of Arc or Einstein.
Whatever they call it, we will still make it with the same quality materials and careful workmanship that we put into all of our mattresses and box springs. We still think the first requirement of a mattress, regardless of the fancy name, is to give a comfortable night's sleep.

Beau Bridges

Would you please print a picture of Beau Bridges and tell me a little bit about him. Also, is he the son of Lloyd Bridges?

C.B.

Beau, who is the son of Lloyd Bridges, made his film debut at age four in "The Red Pony." An interest in sports preoccupied his early school days and it wasn't until his college years that he resumed his acting career in various television shows including his father's "Sea Hunt" series.

He has had starring roles in such films as "The Incident," "Lovin' Molly," "Gaily, Gaily," and "The Other Side of the Mountain." He and his wife, Juli, have two children.

Glaser's learned to handle fame

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Through much of this TV season, the top-rated new show has been ABC's Starsky and Hutch. Critics hate it, but the public seems to love it. Maybe one reason it's popular is because it is pure escapism.

"It's a comic strip," says Starsky, alias Paul Michael Glaser. "And I see nothing wrong with that. I'm tired of slice-of-life theater, slice-of-life films, slice-of-life television.

"I live a slice-of-life existence, and so does everybody else. I think movies and TV should be bigger than life, like comic strips, like Starsky and Hutch. That way we can all have an hour or so of escape."

So Starsky and Hutch go about their business, living a life removed from reality, and garnering high ratings as they indulge in the most improbable kinds of adventures.

There have been other escapist attempts that didn't work, of course. This one works, Glaser thinks, due to three main reasons.

"I think," says the introspective young actor, "that the first reason is the chemistry between David Soul (who plays Hutch) and me. Second, we have outstanding editing, which keeps the show at a fast pace and the public likes that. And, third, I believe the public likes to live vicariously through our adventures and our brushes with violence."

He says the violence of the show doesn't trouble him. He belongs to the school of thought which holds that the public gets rid of its violent urges by watching the violence of others.

"Everybody's life," he says, "is usually pretty drab. There's seldom any real excitement, and I think people need excitement. They see us and imagine they are living our lives and that's good and helpful."

There's been plenty of excitement for Paul Michael Glaser lately. Nothing like a hot hit to run a young actor into a sizzling commodity. Fortunately, he recognized the danger inherent in that transformation and has taken steps to see that he isn't harmed by it.

PAUL MICHAEL GLASER

"I realized," he says, "that being associated with such a big hit could change me. So I started therapy, so those changes wouldn't be harmful."

Glaser thinks the therapy, which is continuing, has helped him. He believes now he can cope with all the fame, the adulation and the money that is coming his way on the strength of Starsky and Hutch. Now, he says, he can cope with whatever comes his way.

And a lot is coming. Until very recently, his telephone number was listed. Until this year, he had had no reason to request an unlisted number. But now he has had to make the change, to guard his privacy.

"I kept getting gifts shoved into my mail chute," he says. "And people ringing my bell day and night. A few times girls showed up at my door, but my girl friend got rid of them pretty fast."

All in all, this has been a momentous year for Glaser. He says it's been a "hard year, but a growing and exciting one."

He admits he went through one stage, during the year, when he began feeling he knew everything about everything — and started ordering people around on the set, telling them all what to do.

"My producers knocked that out of me," he says, "and I was smart enough to realize they were right."

He and his co-star, David Soul, had their ups and downs, too. There was a period when their relationship was marked with jealousies. But fortunately, for Glaser and the show, they worked their problems out.

Beau Bridges

Would you please print a picture of Beau Bridges and tell me a little bit about him. Also, is he the son of Lloyd Bridges?

C.B.

Beau, who is the son of Lloyd Bridges, made his film debut at age four in "The Red Pony." An interest in sports preoccupied his early school days and it wasn't until his college years that he resumed his acting career in various television shows including his father's "Sea Hunt" series.

He has had starring roles in such films as "The Incident," "Lovin' Molly," "Gaily, Gaily," and "The Other Side of the Mountain." He and his wife, Juli, have two children.

Write to Beau in care of the William Morris Agency, Inc., 151 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

I have a bet with a friend on the age of Bob Hope. Can you please print his birthdate?

K.K.

Bob Hope, born Lester Townes Hope in Eltham England, May 29, 1903, is 72.

Tanya Tucker

I was wondering if you would print a picture of Tanya Tucker and give her address.

D.T.

You can write to Tanya Tucker, 17-year-old singer whose hit "Delta Dawn" brought fame at the age of 13, in care of John Kelly & Associates, P.O. Box 14927, Las Vegas, Nev. 89114.

In answer to J.R.: It was stated that Jackie Gleason didn't play Riley on "The Life of Riley" series. Although William Bendix is best known for the role, Gleason had the part for the first few months due to the fact that Bendix had radio commitments.

L.S.

Thanks for setting us straight. Several of our readers wrote in who remembered Gleason in the role.

I would like to know the addresses of Fonzie, Potsie and Ralph Malph of "Happy Days."

P.K.

You can write to Henry Winkler, Anson Williams and Donny Most in care of ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., 90027.

Glaser's learned to handle fame

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Through much of this TV season, the top-rated new show has been ABC's Starsky and Hutch. Critics hate it, but the public seems to love it. Maybe one reason it's popular is because it is pure escapism.

"It's a comic strip," says Starsky, alias Paul Michael Glaser. "And I see nothing wrong with that. I'm tired of slice-of-life theater, slice-of-life films, slice-of-life television.

"I live a slice-of-life existence, and so does everybody else. I think movies and TV should be bigger than life, like comic strips, like Starsky and Hutch. That way we can all have an hour or so of escape."

So Starsky and Hutch go about their business, living a life removed from reality, and garnering high ratings as they indulge in the most improbable kinds of adventures.

There have been other escapist attempts that didn't work, of course. This one works, Glaser thinks, due to three main reasons.

"I think," says the introspective young actor, "that the first reason is the chemistry between David Soul (who plays Hutch) and me. Second, we have outstanding editing, which keeps the show at a fast pace and the public likes that. And, third, I believe the public likes to live vicariously through our adventures and our brushes with violence."

He says the violence of the show doesn't trouble him. He belongs to the school of thought which holds that the public gets rid of its violent urges by watching the violence of others.

"Everybody's life," he says, "is usually pretty drab. There's seldom any real excitement, and I think people need excitement. They see us and imagine they are living our lives and that's good and helpful."

There's been plenty of excitement for Paul Michael Glaser lately. Nothing like a hot hit to run a young actor into a sizzling commodity. Fortunately, he recognized the danger inherent in that transformation and has taken steps to see that he isn't harmed by it.

PAUL MICHAEL GLASER

"I realized," he says, "that being associated with such a big hit could change me. So I started therapy, so those changes wouldn't be harmful."

Glaser thinks the therapy, which is continuing, has helped him. He believes now he can cope with all the fame, the adulation and the money that is coming his way on the strength of Starsky and Hutch. Now, he says, he can cope with whatever comes his way.

And a lot is coming. Until very recently, his telephone number was listed. Until this year, he had had no reason to request an unlisted number. But now he has had to make the change, to guard his privacy.

"I kept getting gifts shoved into my mail chute," he says. "And people ringing my bell day and night. A few times girls showed up at my door, but my girl friend got rid of them pretty fast."

All in all, this has been a momentous year for Glaser. He says it's been a "hard year, but a growing and exciting one."

He admits he went through one stage, during the year, when he began feeling he knew everything about everything — and started ordering people around on the set, telling them all what to do.

"My producers knocked that out of me," he says, "and I was smart enough to realize they were right."

He and his co-star, David Soul, had their ups and downs, too. There was a period when their relationship was marked with jealousies. But fortunately, for Glaser and the show, they worked their problems out.

Shelby Lyman on chess

The age of chess has come. Hordes of youth are taking to the game with a new seriousness and confidence.

In the Soviet Union last year, 2½ million participated in the national junior championships. Trainers and facilities are not yet available to accommodate the flux of whizzes.

In England, 20-year-old Anthony Miles has just become that country's first grandmaster. There are many other fine young players who will now get the idea that they can do it, too.

And in the U.S. three players, Norman Weinstein, 23, James Tarjan, 23, and Larry Christiansen, 19, have already achieved the first of the two necessary grandmaster norms. Tarjan in fact is, at this writing, in first place in the international tournament at Skopje, Yugoslavia, ahead of the World Champion Anatoly Karpov.

Watch out, Bobby. If you wait too long to return you may be known as Rip Van Fischer!

The latest sensation in American chess is Joel Benjamin, just turned 12 years old and already an Expert (rating 2022). That level was not reached by the likes of Browne, Weinstein, Tarjan and Rogoff until age 14 or 15!

The Solve-It diagram shows Benjamin's victory over Authur Feuerstein, once among the country's top ten players.

Joel routinely won a pawn in the diagrammed position with 10.NxP! NxN; 11. Q-Q5ch, R-B2; 12. BxB, KxB; 13. QxN. But exceptional was his subsequent technique in bringing the win home.

(a) Whatever black's move,
26. R-B7 ch wins the bishop.

Solution to BEGINNER'S CORNER: White's move is 1. Q-N3 threatening mate. Black's only defense is 1 . . . P-N3, which loses rook for bishop.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

If South plays a low spade from dummy at trick one he will win that battle, but lose the war. In other words, the spade finesse will work but the three-notrump contract will wind up in Davy Jones locker. The reason is that he will have no way to get his own hand to run his diamonds if West just holds off once with his ace when the suit is played.

Of course, there are all sorts of ways for South to collect nine tricks if the defense slips but perfect defense will ruin all those ways.

Now, let South play secondhand high at trick one.

He goes after diamonds. West takes his ace and looks around for new worlds to conquer, but there just aren't any. South is going to win two spades, two clubs, four diamonds and two hearts which comes to a total of 10 tricks or one more than he needs.
